Regents Master Plan . . . Complimentary and Critical

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Some parts of the quadrennial master plan of the New York State Board of Regents for advanced education may offend private colleges, public colleges and teachers' unions statewide.

Although the bulk of the report was complimentary to the public and private colleges and universities, it contained a few criticisms.

To the private colleges the Regents issued a directive Wednesday to scale down construction plans. Under the best arrangements, said the board, private institutions will be under heavy financial pressure during the remainder of this century and new buildings, with accompanying debt service and maintenance costs, should be avoided.

The governing body of all education in New York also doubted that private colleges will be able to achieve their enrollment goals. Indeed continued the board, some private colleges will have to consolidate if they are to survive. The formation of new private colleges will be discouraged.

To the State University, the Regents said it was disappointed that the university's master plan did not guarantee preference to community college graduates for enrollment in senior public colleges.

The Regents also noted the reluctance of the State University to support a plan helping community college graduates to transfer to senior private colleges.

Regarding the City University of New York, the Regents repeated their desire for an abandonment of the policy of free tuition. The City University should establish a rational tuition policy for all students based upon their ability to pay, the 500-page report said.

The plan contained several for teachers. Colleges were directed to submit by 1974 procedures for firing incompetent teachers that are tenured. The 15 Regents agreed that tenure should not be scrapped but said incompetent teachers should be weeded out.

The Regents also endorsed collective bargaining arrangements but said the unions should not have a say in determining tenure, curriculum development and revision, class size, faculty evaluation and promotion and student-faculty ratios.

The Regents also called for an end to permanent certification of teachers in elementary and secondary schools. The opportunity to reassess the performance of teachers and to dismiss those who are not doing their job should be allowed, the board said.

The master plan is submitted every four years to determine the course of advanced education. This master plan differed from previous master plans in that it encompassed all post-secondary education — including business schools and private colleges.

The plan also departed from the bricks-and-mortar approach taken by previous master plans. Instead of expanding physical facilities, the Regents said, colleges and universities should develop current resources.

Declining population and current economics dictated the new focus. The number of high school graduates entering college is expected to increase gradually to 1980 and then decline. The high cost of traditional higher education and the state's fiscal restraints forced the reassessment.

"This is the last chance for growth," said Education Commissioner Ewald B. Nyquist, speaking for the Regents. "It's time for maturity and for getting our houses in order."

The plan called for a flexibility in academic calendars and courses and alternatives to the traditional on-campus education.

Police Press Airport Probe, Seek 15 Suspected Arabs

MUNICH (AP)—West German police hunted for 15 more Arabs today and pressed an investigation into the airfield killing of nine Israeli hostages on Tuesday.

Bavarian state police said the 15 were suspected of being accomplices in the planning and execution of Arab terrorists attack Tuesday that killed two other members of the Israeli Olympic team and culminated in the airfield shootout.

Five of the terrorists and a West German policeman also were killed at the airfield. A German helicopter pilot was seriously wounded. Three of the terrorists were captued slightly wounded.

The three captives were identified as Ibrahim Badran, 20, Abd Es Kadir El Dnawy and Samer Mohamed Abdulah, both 22. They claimed to be students and said they last lived in Jordan and Syria.

A Bavarian court official said they faced multiple charges of murder. They were being interrogated at an undisclosed location.

The court had until Thursday night to issue formal charges. The maximum penalty for premediated murder is life imprisonment, there being no death penalty in West Germany.

Meanwhile, Tel Aviv reported that Israeli troops punched into southern Lebanon today in pursuit of Arab guerrillas, a military spokesman said. He said the Israelis have remained there without suffering any casualties.

The announcement said an Israeli patrol earlier in the day had tracked down and killed one of a group of guerrillas who had infiltrated from Lebanon Wednesday and clashed with an Israeli patrol.

In that skirmish, one Israeli soldier and one guerrilla were reported killed.

A spokesman said the Israeli troops pushed into southern Lebanon, tracking still another member of the guerrilla group to the village of Yarum, about one mile above the border.

Related Olympic stories, photos on Page 13.

"At the time this announcement is being delivered, a force is carrying on with searching the area of Yarum village," the announcement said. "The Israeli forces have had no casualties." Yarum is eight miles in from the Mediterranean.

It was the first Israeli raid into Lebanon since a four-day reprisal strike in February, and followed by two days the slayings of the Israeli Olympians by guerrillas in Munich.

The Olympic competition, suspended 12 hours after the first Israeli was killed in the Olympic Village, resumed late Wednesday with big crowds. But at least four Dutch and 12 Norwegian team members decided to abandon further competition. They said they were shaken by the killings of the Israelis.

The first two Israelis were killed when the terrorists invaded their quarters at the Olympic Village before dawn Tuesday. Late Tuesday night the Arabs and their nine hostages were taken to Fuerstenfeldbruck military airfield in two helicopters where a Boeing 727 was waiting, ostensibly to fly them to the Middle East. The Arabs said they would free the hostages if Israel released 200 guerrillas jailed in Israel.

But the Interior Ministry said German authorities were convinced that "a flight out of this country would have meant certain death for the athletes." Afterward Premier Golda Meir of Israel expressed approval of the decision to try to kill the terrorists and free the hostages.

The circumstances of the shootout at Fuerstenfeldbruck were still unclear and the West German government said it was investigating.

The Munich police initially said the first shots were fired by one of the Arabs who reacted hysterically when he saw police waiting at the airfield. But the police later retracted this and said further investigation showed police sharpshooters opened fire when two of the guerrillas showed themselves in an especially favorable position. However, the police said the sharpshooters were unable to knock the two Arabs out of the battle before they got off shots of their own.

The police said the visibility also was very poor — it was about 11 p.m and the airfield was not illuminated — and the sharpshooters were using telescopic sights to fire at shadows.

Expressions of grief and protests continued abroad.

More than 1,000 persons filed silently through the Israeli Embassy in London to sign a leather-bound book of condolences.

The embassy said scores of men at least half of them not Jewish, telephoned to volunteer for the Israeli army. All were refused, since the Israelis do not take foreign volunteers into their military.

At London Airport, union leaders of ground crew personel for Trans World Airlines said the crews would boycott Kuwait Airlines — which TWA handles — for 48 hours to protest the Munich slayings.

Diplomats Seek Ways Of Curbing Terrorists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is pushing on a broad diplomatic front for international agreement on ways of curbing terrorists. But no such accord is expected soon.

Late Wednesday, the State Department called in envoys from 40 countries to start consultations on what might be done to prevent recurrence of such incidents as the mass murder of Israeli Olympic athletes seized by Arab commandos.

Department spokesman Charles Bray said afterward that the diplomatic talks may go on "for days, weeks and months." It is "obviously a very complex, difficult and perhaps protracted problem," he said.

Administration strategist resisted calls for a quick crackdown on specific Arab countries, through Washington revereberated with exhorations for tough action.

Blaming the Egyptian and Lebanese governments for the murders, Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern said President Nixon should demand that Egypt "root out these international outlaws" as a price for resuming diplomatic relations.

The Senate voted 82 to 0 in favor of economic sanctions against nations harboring terrorists.

Administration officials said their information still is unclear as to the membership of the Black September group blamed for the Munich terror, nor can they be sure of its sources of support.

They contended that public fingerpointing at foreign governments at this stage is not a good way of enlisting their cooperation in curbing terrorists.

Yet there was also apprehension among U.S. officials that if some effective international action is not taken, Israel will strike back somewhere with retaliatory violence against Arabs.

Israeli Ambassador Yitzhak Rabin left open the possibility of Israeli retaliation in talking to reporters after an hour-long session with Secretary of State William P. Rogers. But Rabin stressed the need for making clear the responsibilites of governments agains terrorists.

He said Egypt, Syria and Lebanon lend use of their territory to anti-Israeli terorists and Libya, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia help finance them.

The Israeli envoy said, without elaboration, that he and Rogers "agreed about certain actions to be taken." He included security measures among these.

Bray said Israel, which wants the current Olympics halted, did not ask the United States to withdraw its team. The American Olympic Committee has decided to stay in the Olympic games.

Savago, Elmendorf Propose New County Court House

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

A new Court House adjacent to the new County Jail on Golden Hill is being proposed by Ulster County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8) and Lester C. Elmendorf (R-Dist. 2).

Although there is much sentimentality attached to the 154-year-old court house on Wall Street in Kingston, there apparently isn't too much practicality in its continued inadequate but costly use to the county.

Savago and Elmendorf will suggest to the Legislature at its Sept. 14 meeting that the county board investigate the feasibility of constructing a new court house.

Related County Legislature Stories on Page 2.

They point out that due to the age of the present court house, the cost of emergency maintenance and upkeep is exorbitant. During spring and summer rains, the court room ceiling leaked, huge barrels were placed to catch the water and the floor of the jail kitchen flooded to a depth of several feet.

Savago and Elmendorf also cited the shortage of space which has resulted in hampering the handling of court cases. At times there are as many as four judges available to handlle the overload of cases but only three court rooms.

"There is also insufficient room for jurors to be housed" while serving on a jury or awaiting jury selection.

They also point out that the new Ulster County Jail at the Golden Hill complex will be opened in about a year and all prisoners will be housed in the new jail. Therefore there will be a potential danger in the transporting prisoners from the new jail to the present court house for arraignment or trial. This is not advisable, they claim.

It appears,' they said, 'that the location of a new Court House adjacent to the new county jail would be in the best interests of the people."

Ulster County's present court house is steeped in history. It is the site of the inaugaration of the first governor of the State of New York, General George Clinton on July 30, 1777.

During one of many renovations in 1963, workmen found handwriting on a wall behind heavy wooden paneling in the old Board of Supervisors room.

In script style and done with either a carbon leaden or crayon-type instrument was the following inscription: "Uncle Sam . . . Down With Spain . . . Now is the Time . . .Don't Nail McKinley."

Written before 1901, there is little doubt that the patriotic inscribed inscription referred to the Spanish American War and to President McKinley who served at that time.

Gunmen in Green Fatigues Kill Eight at Swank Golf Club

CHRISTIANSTED, St. Croix, V.I. (UPI)—Masked gunmen burst from a clump of bushes bordering a swank golf course Wednesday, gunned down 11 diners in the clubhouse and escaped into the hills of this resort island after cleaning out their victim's pockets.

Eight persons were killed in the attack and three were injured. Only one of the victims, an employe at the golf course, was identified.

Guards stood posted today at all possible points of exit from the 84-square-mile tourist island as government helicopters arrived from Puerto Rico and two planeloads of police reinforcements were flown in from neighboring St. Thomas to assist the St. Croix contingent of about 100 police in a massive, island-wide manhunt for the killers.

Lt. Gov. David Maas, a former FBI agent, said "four or five" men launched the 5 p.m. EDT attack. Witnesses said the men—hooded, dressed in green fatigues and wearing what appeared to be bullet-proof vests—sprang from the bushes at the Fountain Valley Golf Course and sprayed the open air clubhouse dining area with automatic weapons fire.

Maas said seven persons fell dead instantly. Another died later at Charles Harwood Hospital and three others were admitted with bullet wounds. Police said four of the dead were apparently tourists and witnesses said several of the victims were shot in the back.

Police said the killers took the wallets of the victims and any valuables they had on them. They then cleaned out the clubhouse till of about $700 and fled toward the remote, hilly central spine of the island where the crux of today's manhunt was centered.

A police spokesman said the armed men, believed to be fugitives wanted for some time, were spotted in the vicinity of the course earlier Wednesday but detectives sent to investigate did not arrive until after the shooting.

One of the victims was identified as Mrs. Ford Tarbutt, an employe of the Pro Shop at the Rockefeller-owned course eight miles west of Christian sted. Police said they were having difficulty identifying the others because of the stolen wallets.

Proposed 'Second Hand' Law . . . Wide Support

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON — Burglars will have a tough time selling their stolen loot to second hand and antique dealers in Ulster County under a new law proposed by County Legislator Lester C. Elmendorf (R-Dist. 2).

His plan to license dealers of used goods and require them to keep records of all sales including the identity of the seller, has the whole hearted approval of local police agencies.

BCI Investigator Michael Lisman praised Elmendorf for the move pointing out that the amount of stolen property sold in the county is staggering and the new law would be an effective means of cutting down on the amount of stolen property sold here.

Lisman said that the majority of burglaries committed in Ulster County during the past two to three years are committed by drug addicts who are trying to support their habit and often times sell items of considerable worth for a pittance. He told of $500 antiques going for as little as $20.

Under the new proposal, all dealers in second hand merchandise will be licensed, will be required to make their reports available to the police and/or a county agency and they must require of the seller, proof of identity.

Failure to comply with the law would result in penalties and would make the dealer subject to arrest. Records would also be required with regard to serial numbers on items sold.

Lisman, who with Investigator Wayne Beyea will address the Ulster County Legislature on the subject at its Sept. 14 meeting, urges passage of the law "for the protection of the general public."

Elmendorf, in proposing a resolution to study the establishment of a local law covering the proposal, cited the alarming increase of burglaries in recent years.

He specifically asks that the Judicial and Legal Committee conduct a thorough study in conjunction with the Ulster County District Attorney Francis J. Vogt, the New York State Police, the Ulster County Sheriff's Deartment and any other office or police agency to determine the feasibilitity of establishing the law "as a means of controlling the serious crime problem in Ulster County."

Lisman said that hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property has been stolen during the past year and that burglaries are more flagrant outside the city.

Both he and Elmendorf said they are aware that the residents of the county are cognizant of this crime wave and "must be constantly on the alert to protect their personal property."

$1 Million in Federal Funds Cited

KINGSTON — With up to $1 million dollars available to Ulster County to further alleviate its unemployment problem, the Ulster County Legislature is being asked to apply for federal funds for public works and economic development projects.

The legislature which meets Thursday, Sept. 14 at the County Office Building, will also reconsider offering an award of up to $10,000 a year for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons attempting to kill or killing a police officer.

Increasing the salaries of the Surrogate, County Judge and Family Court Judge will also be considered as will freezing land and school taxes for elderly persons living on social security and fixed pensions.

The Legislature is being requested additionally to mail copies of all resolutions to members the day they are filed and require a two-thirds vote of the board for passage of resolutions which are filed late.

The request to have Ulster County designated as a Title One area to qualify for federal aid to relieve unemployment comes from the Industrial Development and Publicity Committee.

Chairman Eugene Noe (R-Dist. 9) explained that Ulster County qualifies for the designation and that a considerable amount of money could become avaliable with minimal expense to the county. More than $800 million has been appropriated by the federal government to be used specifically for public works and economic development facilities.

Noe and his committee also ask that an economic development committee be created to investigate the necessary steps to meet the federal requirements.

Listed among various eligible projects in the county are industrial park development, water and sewer facilities, primarily serving industrial and commercial areas, and water pollution control facilities (especially industrial waste).

The reward proposal comes from the Judicial and Legal Committee, James Palen (R-Dist. 9), chairman. The suggestion was before the Legislature once before and was rejected pending further study.

The committee suggests that $1,000 be appropriated as a reward to be paid to any individual or group of individuals giving information leading to the arrest and conviction of those taking or attempting to take the life of a police officer. The total amount of reward money paid in any one calendar year should not exceed $10,000.

The proposal to increase the judge's salaries also comes from the Judicial and Legal Committee which claims that the increases are now mandated by law in the amount of $1,075, and will require no additional expenditure of county money, but will, in fact, only reflect the additional state aid made for this purpose."

The three judges presently make an annual salary of $30,000. The increase would raise the yearly income to $31,075.

Legislator Ralph Brach (R-Dist. 9) has proposed the amending of the rules of order with regard to the filing of resolutions.

Brach contends that "it is impossible to give careful consideration to resolutions, the contents of which are unknown until they are read at caucus or on the floor of the Legislature meeting."

The proposal to freeze land and school taxes for elderly living on social security and fixed pensions is that of Alex J. Nirenberg (D-Dist. 10). He said that many of the elderly are forced to sell thier homes because they no longer can cope with increasing property taxes. He suggests that his proposal be studied by the Tax Base Committee.

Local Woman Heads Group

GLENS FALLS — Mrs. Malinda Davis, senior citizens coordinator for the Ulster County Community Action Committee, heads a four-member delegation from Ulster County to the OEO-sponsored first annual conference on the problems of the aged in New York State, which began Wednesday and will conclude on Friday.

Joining Mrs. Davis are Mrs. Mildred Withers of Shandaken, Mrs. Pricilla Palin of Ellenville and Mrs. Marina Price of Kingston.

Guest speakers will be Angel Rivera, director Region II OEO, and Frank Manning, president Legislative Council of Older Americans of Boston, Mass.

The business of the conference will be to elect officers for the council of delegates which is made up of representatives from each county in New York State. They in turn elect their board of directors. The present ad-hoc committee will then turn the business of the state-wide senior action council over to the bonafide council of delegates.

The state-wide senior action council's concerns are the kind and quality of legislation for senior citizens in New York State.

"New York State should be a showcase to the country for advanced social services for its senior citizens," a spokesman said. "It is not enough to heighten the consciousness and social awareness toward our senior citizens; we must particiapte in designing legislation.

"Our long-range goal is the achievement of dignity, well-being and security for the present and future generations of senior citizens in this State of New York."

Chairman Disputes 'Surplus' Tag

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Assembly Minority Leader Stanley Steingut's suggestion that New York State will have a budget surplus of $550 million this year has been hotly disputed by Assembly Ways and Means Committee Chairman Willis Stephens.

Steingut, a Brooklyn Democrat, predicted the budget surplus at a news conference Wednesday and said it should be used "for tax cuts to help our working men and women."

Stephens, a Brewster Republican, called Steingut's proposal "campaign-related" and "the most incredible pie-in-the-sky statement in a generation."

Figures from the Rockefeller administration supported most of Steingut's calculations but did not bear out his contention that revenues are running ahead of anticipated levels.

The surplus would come from $125 million in tax revenues above anticipated levels, $75 million in savings resulting from reductior of welfare caseloads and $350 million in unanticipated federal reimbursement for certain welfare programs, Steingut said.

He advocated cutting the state sales tax from the current four per cent to three per cent and eliminating the so-called "hot dog tax," the application of the sales tax to restaurant meals under one dollar.

An alternative, he said, would be to provide relief from local property taxes by increasing state aid to local school districts by 20 per cent.

The Budget Division said last week that reductions in the welfare caseload and other unexpected savings have left spending thus far in the fiscal year about $75 million below the anticipated pace, just as Steingut said.

And the state has already taken in $279 million in unanticipated federal welfare reimbursements, under sections of the Social Security Act that the state said it had not noticed until recently.

Conceivably, the state could end the year with even more than the $350 million windfall Steingut predicted from the welfare aid. But a move is underway in Congress to put a $1 billion nationwide ceiling on that aspect of federal welfare aid, which could reduce New York's share to about $80 million in the next fiscal year.

Steingut's calculation that the state will take in $12 million more in revenues this year than anticipated was hotly disputed by the ways and means committee staff and the Tax Department.

And the figures a Steingut fiscal aide said he based his calculations on are not, in fact, the revenue anticipation figures in the Rockefeller administration's budget.

The Tax Department's report for the five-month period which ended Aug. 31 showed revenues of $2.79 billion, as against $2.14 billion for the same period last year.

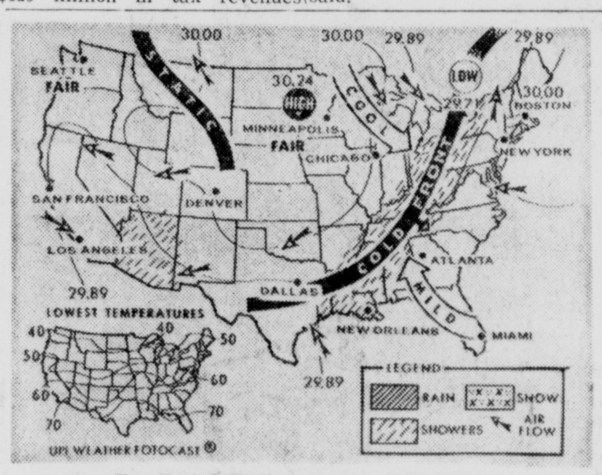

Michael del Giudice, the Steingut aide who said he calculated the revenue figures contained in the minority leader's proposal, said the current budget anticipates revenues this year equal to those of last year. Therfore, he said, the state has already taken in $655 million more than it had expected to at this point.

Deducting the $483 million debt carry-over from last year's deficit budget and allowing for some season fluctuation, del Giudice said, led him to the $125-million figure for unanticipated revenues over the course of the entire fiscal year.

But the state budget does not anticipate that this year's revenues will be the same as last year's. A series of tax increases and the slow improvement of the national economy altered the picture.

According to the Budget Division, tax revenues in the last fiscal year were $6.78 billion. Anticipated revenues in this year's budget are more than $1 billion higher, at $7.84 billion.

The state's tax collections this year are running about 12 per cent ahead of last year's intake.

Explosive Confrontation Avoided

State Labor . . . Still Neutral

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Organized labor in New York State clung to its cherished neutrality in the presidential elections today, thanks to the persuasiveness of its leaders, who convinced a member of President Nixon's cabinet to soft-pedal the politics in his prepared speech.

Officials of the New York State AFL-CIO succeeded in defusing a potentially explosive confrontation at their convention Wednesday between supporters of the President and those of his re-election opponent, Democratic Sen. George McGovern.

Both sides were ready.

Labor Secretary James Hodgson, a late addition to the speaking schedule of the labor convention, showed up with a prepared text in which he was ready to spend at least 15 minutes listing details of why the labor leaders should support Nixon and turn their backs on McGovern, leader of what he would have called "a fractional group of late-blooming utopians" who had captured the Democratic party.

If Hodgson had delivered that speech, the delegates would have heard immediately a pro-McGovern speech from Electrical Workers Union President Paul Jennings, the next scheduled speaker.

The back-to-back political speeches were sidetracked, though, by state AFL-CIO President Ray Corbett and other members of the executive council who feared that any strong pro-Nixon speech would tear the convention apart.

As the delegates were having lunch, Corbett and others met with Hodgson and his staff and convinced him to tone down the speech.

Hodgson used only a fraction of the original version, in which he had prepared to condemn McGovern's welfare and tax proposals and to point with pride to all that Nixon had done for the working man.

Despite strong support among the rank-and-file union members for McGovern, Corbett has insisted that the state organization is bound by the union's bylaws to remain neutral because national AFL-CIO officials have refused to endorse any candidate for president.

Hodgson prefaced his remarks by saying, "I had intended to make a somewhat political talk today because I had heard Senator McGovern would have someone here. Since this is not so, I feel it would be inappropriate and unfair to go ahead."

He then delivered a mild speech touching on such issues as unemployment, manpower training and inflation.

He drew little reaction from the audience until he said that the American worker today is finding "an increase in real money in his paycheck" for the first time since 1965. That remark drew a chorus of boos from the audience.

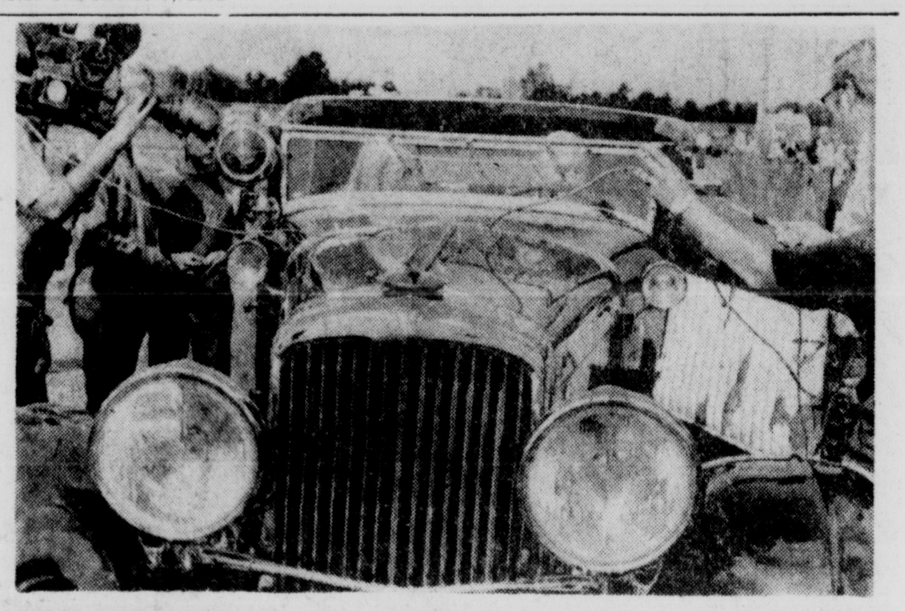

One of McGovern's strongest labor supporters in New York, Victor Gotbaum, head of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, had said before the convention that efforts to get a convention endorsement for McGovern would depend on the tone of speeches by Nixon supporters.

However, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller avoided a direct plea for Nixon support in his speech. Hodgson dropped his strongly political speech and Gotbaum and other McGovern supporters appeared satisfied.

Rockefeller, who has said that one of his main priorities this fall is to see that Nixon is reelected, stuck mainly to state issues in his talk.

He spent most of his time discussing his own administration's 14 years of effort to provide work by devising more than $25 billion in construction projects.

He agreed with Nixon critics that the national and state economy are in a shambles but he attributed part of that to efforts to beef up such programs as welfare, which forces up spending at the expense of the taxpayer.

Dixie Governors Elect Black Vice-Chairman

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI)—The first black chairman-elect of the Southern Governor's Conference says his selection marks a "maturing" of Dixie leadership.

Gov. Melvin H. Evans of the Virgin Islands was unanimously chosen vice chairman by the 17 governors Wednesday at the closing of the annual conference.

As vice chairman, Evans automatically becomes chairman in 1973, succeeding Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, who was inserted as the new chairman when South Carolina Gov. John C. West stepped aside in tribute to Wallace.

"When the Southern governors elect George Wallace and a black Republican, then I think we've shown to the world an example of Southern unity and progress," said West.

Wallace, who once stood in a school doorway and vowed "segregation forever", leaned from his wheelchair and clasped hands with Lane after the election as other governors stood and applauded.

Evans, smiling broadly after his selection, told friends and reporters that his election represents a "maturing of Southern governors." He denied that his name was proposed to balance that of Wallace.

Wallace's political philosophy and presidential ambitions have long been a source of embarrassment to some "New South" Democratic governors. But there was no animosity in the Alabama governor's elevation Wednesday.

West said the chief executives picked Wallace "because he has shown courage in the face of extreme personal hardship." West was in line to move from vice chairman to chairman but decided to give up the assignment and endorse Wallace.

Evans was the only governor to vote against the mildly worded resolution opposing forced busing. Identical to the wording of a proposal endorsed by the Southern governors in 1970.

Evans told the governors busing has been around for a long time, adding "it has provided educational opportunity for a lot of rural children they could not get in one-room schools."

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri and several other governors expressed reservations against the resolution, but joined in voting for it. Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia endorsed the resolution because of the problems he said court-ordered busing has caused in places such as Augusta, Ga.

Federal Sharing . . . Another Senate Hurdle

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon's top priority in Congress—the sharing of federal revenue with the states and localities—faced another hurdle in the Senate today.

The Senate scheduled its second day of debate on a proposal to share $34.8 billion in federal funds with the states and localities over a five-year period. The House approved a $29.8 billion program in June.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., planned to offer an amendment that would require the plan to be reviewed by Congress annually. The House rejected a similar proposal for annual appropriations, and the Senate program approved by the Senate Finance Committee also would cover five years.

Critics of the Senate plan charged Wednesday that it was too generous in its formula allocations to rural states and failed to provide enough money for the more problem-plagued urban states.

The Senate, however, beat back an attempt by Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., to liberalize the fund formula in favor of the big urbanized states.

House Spurns Wheat Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has rejected even a half-a-loaf version of legislation to finance advertising campaigns urging Americans to eat more wheat, while a congressman says auditors plan to probe the massive U.S.-Soviet wheat deal.

A wheat industry advertising and promotion bill, which critics claimed would give bakers a new reason to raise bread prices, was killed by the House Wednesday after the legislation's opponents inserted a sweeping referendum provision.

Meanwhile, Rep. Pierre S. duPont, R-Del., announced the General Accounting Office, audit arm for Congress, agreed to investigate whether the U.S.-Soviet wheat sale "may have created a windfall for financial specualtors and exporters may have excessively benefited from continued government subsidies."

Under the bill which the House killed 235 to 122, a council would have been set up to administer a promotional campaign and to collect assessments in the wheat industry, with federal backing for an effort to show Americans the value of eating wheat products.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., called the bill ill-timed and costly, and persuaded the House to accept his referendum amendment which he said would provide a trigger for the promotional program to take effect.

Through the Findley mechanism, the program would have had to be approved by at least two-thirds of the wheat producers voting in the referendum and by processors and the end-product makers handling half the total market.

New Facility at Kingston Trust

KINGSTON

A new drive-in banking facility designed to speed service and improve traffic flow has been placed in operation at Kingston Trust Company's 27 Main Street office in Kingston.

Joseph W. Roberston, president of the bank, noted that two lanes of traffic are now able to conduct banking business at the same time with the use of the new Mosler facility.

Increasing use of the former, one-lane facility resulted during peak periods in traffic backing up on to Main Street, Robertson pointed out. The new two-lane arrangement will relieve that problem.

An oversized, 11-foot wide drive-in window now serves one lane directly. The second traffic lane is served from a "kiosk" or island. The customer at the kiosk communicates by intercom system, while maintaining visual contact with the teller at the window. Items in the transaction are passed back and forth by pneumatic tube.

Chief ingredient for the stepped-up service is a pneumatically-operated remote transaction system known as the "Pneu-Vista" customer unit. The system was designed and engineered by Mosler, an American-Standard Company. Henry H. Swart and Son, Inc., was the contractor for structural renovations needed to accommodate the new system.

A similar system, but providing for three lanes of traffic, will soon be installed at Kingston Trust Company's Ulster office, 1203 Ulster Avenue Mall. Regular drive-in banking service is also available at the bank's office at 518 Broadway, Kingston, and in Marlboro, Kerhonkson, Stone Ridge and Hurley.

Kingston Trust, an equal housing lender, is a commercial bank and trust company offering all banking services. Established in 1836, it is a locally autonomous member of First Commercial Banks, Inc., member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and the Federal Reserve System.

Unanchored Individualism

From two places separated by thousands of miles and as desperate as the American Bar Association and the Olympics games at Munich came similar assessments and complaints about the failure of the home in our society. U. S. Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. analyzed and discussed the ethics of the home to the nation's lawyers; and U. S. Olympic basketball coach Henry Iba echoed its effect in the language of sports.

Said Iba, "All kids are hard to coach nowadays. The trouble is with fathers, mothers, teachers and ministers. We need more discipline in our country." At 68, Iba has coached three successive basketball teams. He has seen the deteriorating effect of the lack of discipline. He speaks out of bitter experience.

Powell, of course, has had the advantage of judicial observation. He sees American society cut adrift from the type of humanizing authority which in the past shaped the character of our people—the personal forms of authority—the home, church, school and community—which gave direction to our lives.

"We respected and grew to maturity with teachers, parents, neighbors, ministers and employers—each imparting values to us," Powell recalled. "Those relationships were larger than ourselves but never so large as to be remote, impersonal or indifferent. We gained from them an inner strength, a sense of belonging as well as of responsibility to others."

Contemporary American life has changed, he notes sadly. Its shape and style has been revolutionized by changes beyond our control: by advances of science and technology, by mass communication, mass transportation and the bewildering problems of an urbanized society. Many of the old ethics and values seem threatened by new ones, but there are many things still within our control, and we must take hold of them.

The Justice calls this unanchored individualism, evident in the new moves of our time. He warns us against excessive self-criticism and says, as many thoughtful persons do, that America's basic good sense and responsibility will eventually assert itself. The time can't come too soon.

The Changed Legion

Why did the American Legion, in convention in Chicago, sit on their hands when George McGovern, himself a veteran, addressed them, and cheered President Nixon, also a veteran? Veterans of all wars have one thing in common, devotion to home and country. They choose the man they think would best advance their patriotic aims.

There are three million members of the Legion. One-sixth, or 500,000 are Vietnam veterans. Another 1.5 million are World War II veterans, the largest group. The Vietnam influx is working a gradual change in the organization. They have made the adjustment and they are trying to help their comrades do the same.

A Legion job-for-vets drive is credited with helping to get 1.5 million of them back on the payroll. Increased benefits under the GI bill, a drug rehabilitation program, and modernized services for veterans hospitals are other benefits the Legion lobbied for.

Mel Stevens, who commanded a river boat in Vietnam, attracted the attention of the White House on the needs of veterans and was given a job to help improve the whole spectrum of services to veterans. Through him, the Legion was invited 18 months ago inside the White House to do its work.

SPACEWORKERS ADRIFT — About 1,000 spacecraft and rocket workers will lose their jobs at Cape Kennedy by next June as work ends on Project Apollo and the Skylab space station. The work force now at the space center is 15,600, most of whom will still be employed in continuing projects. Those who will be adrift have expertise that should be marketable where advanced technical workers are needed.

ROAD TO MIDEAST PEACE—King Hussein of Jordan is hoping for a new move for peace with Israel through the formation of a semi-autonomous state on the West Bank of the Jordan River as a way to develop relations among members of the Jordanian family. He dreams without Israel's firm intention to hold the West Bank, which she has occupied and developed for five years.

Big Corporations 'Dunned'

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's embattled money raiser, Maurice Stans, has been twisting corporate arms for campaign contributions.

Under the law, corporations are forbidden from contributing to political campaigns. However, here's how Stans is getting around the law:

He sent a typical solicitation, for example, to Montgomery Ward, the department store chain. It was carefully addressed not to the corporation but to all its "managment and key employes."

"For those of us who have made our career in business," wrote Stans, "the presidential election in 1972 is critical . . . It is to your self interest to ensure an administration in the federal government that is philosophically dedicated to maintaining and building the system in which you have invested."

The message impressed those who inhabit Montgomery Ward's executive suite. Off went a letter, marked "Personal and Confidential," to "all key management persons in our entire company" from corporate vice president Richard Abbott.

Campaign Pitch

"The business corporation, by law, cannot make political contributions," wrote Abbott. "However, nothing prevents our making individual contributions through the good offices of our company . . .

"There is considerable merit to the idea of combining all of our contributions into one mailing. With this in mind, Mr. Donnell (Edward Donnell, president of Montgomery Ward) has asked that I receive all of the checks and forward the entire batch to him . . .

"Checks should be made payable to : FINANCE COMMITTEE FOR THE RE-ELECTION OF THE PRESIDENT.

"Again, I cannot stress the fact strongly enough that this is your business, not mine or the company's. But for those of us who do wish to contribute, there can be great benefit in giving Mr. Donnell the opportunity to personally present all of our checks together to Mr. Stans."

Similar collections are being taken up in dozens of other corporations at the prodding of Stans. We have evidence that Litton Industries even provided the Nixon campaign organization with a mailing list of its high-level employes.

The corporation denies this. But management people who were dunned for contributions by the GOP told us the addresses in the form they were used could only have come from the company. In 1970, a group of Litton officials reportedly gave $150,000 to the Republicans. The law against corporate contributions, remains technically inviolate.

Footnote: Montgomery Ward's Richard Abbot explained to us that a similar Democratic appeal for funds had also been distributed to corporate executives and mangers. However, the Democratic appeal was accompanied by a routine memo. The Republican appeal was supported by a strong corporate pitch.

Political Neutrality

Israel's Prime Minister Golda Meir has assured two leading Democrats that she wants to keep her country out of the U.S. presidential campaign.

"Israel could only lose if Israel-American relations should become a campaign issue," she told Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Myer Feldman, president of McGovern for President, Inc.

Church called upon the prime minister as part of a Middle East factfinding mission for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He was accompanied by Feldman.

The senator explained that some Israeli diplomats had spread the word among Jewish-American leaders that Israel would prefer to see President Nixon reelected.

She flatly repudiated this. She didn't disavow Nixon but merely expressed official neutrality on the U.S. election. She would affirm Israel's hands-off attitude, she promised Church, if she should be asked.

Footnote: The senator is preparing a Senate report that will call the refugee question the key to peace in the Middle East. The Arab refugees must be resettled and removed as a friction point, he will contend, before a settlement can be reached. He was told by Israeli officials that Israel is willing to make territorial concessions, even including Jordan's west bank, in return for matching Arab concessions.

David Lawrence Says

Why No Declaration

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas said informally on Monday in an interview on CBS television that he believes the Vietnam War may be unconstitutional. He pointed out that the Congress "has the power to declare war" and that the constitution doesn't say "Congress and-or the President." But the Justice seems to have overlooked the fact that Congress has for several years been well aware of its opportunity to make a declaration of war in Vietnam and has refrained from doing so for policy reasons.

The Constitution, moreover, gives the President the power to conduct foreign relations and the responsibility for military operations as Commander-in-Chief of the nation's armed forces.

Congress has passed many resolutions while the Vietnam War has been going on. In one instance, it adopted what was called the "Gulf of Tonkin Resolution," approving the action of the President in taking "all necessary measures" to repel attacks against American forces and to "prevent further aggression." This has been repealed, but every year there have been appropriations voted by Congress to carry on the Vietnam War. Congress could have withheld these funds if it had not wished to support the President's foreign policy. The real question, however, is: Why wasn't there a formal declaraton of war?

In the first place, a declaration of war means international complications with respect to the commerce of the United States and neutral countries. It becomes necessary to search the vessels of non-belligerents to see whether they are carrying supplies of a contraband nature to the enemy. The greatest danger is that if war is declared against one country, its allies may feel obligated to take similar action, and a small conflict can be enlarged into a major war.

The Vietnam War is a "localized" affair. It began as a consequence of an aggression by North Vietnam against South Vietnam. The United States took the position that, as a member of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, it was committed to defend a small country and help to preserve its right to self-determination and its independence.

The President as Commander-in-Chief disperses our armed services around the world. He puts them into strategically important places to protect American interests should any contingency arise affecting this country. The United States has many treaties. The Southeast Asia Treaty, for example, was intended to assure the nations of the region that assistance would be given by America if they were attacked. Under the North Atlantic Treaty — Usually referred to as NATO — a substantial American force has been in Europe for many years as an integral part of the defense of western countries.

The main fact which is quite generally disregarded is that Congress at any time can declare war. But the foreign relations committees of both houses are well informed about the situation in the regions where small wars or threats of wars have developed. The United States has helped to settle problems of this kind without declaring war on anybody.

For one thing, if this country declared war, major powers in Europe and Asia might be inclined to do likewise in order to support countries with which they are allied. There would be more complications than are encountered by letting a war be fought by the principal adversaries with aid from the United States to balance the assistance given by other nations nearby.

Unfortunately, the relationship of Vietnam to the peace of Asia itself has not been understood by some Americans. The balance of strength on the continent, however, was such that a communist seizure of Indochina was a move considered threatening to the interests of the United States from a military standpoint. It caused discussions about the establishment of a number of bases by the Soviets in the South Pacific and Indian Oceans.

Also in the background was the fear by the countries which had signed the Southeast Asia Treaty that there might be other takeovers which would affect their future. In short, the possibility of a major war loomed up, and the United States felt that it had a duty to defend a protocol state protected by SEATO. The treaty itself had been signed by the President and ratified by the Senate. Nations like the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand and Thailand were concerned about what might happen if Indochina were abandoned to the communists.

Bruce Biossat Says

Demos Wrong on 'Secret Plan'

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the heat of battle, Republicans and Democrats alike tend to destroy each other's performance and proposals. They need to be called on it. And right now the Democrats are wrongly proclaiming that President Nixon said he had a "secret plan" to end the war in Vietnam.

That misrepresentation has been repeated so often that even some detached observers are taking it as fact.

The whole thing stems, of course, from a Nixon speech in New Hampshire roughly a week before that state's primary in March, 1968. At the American Legion Hall in Hampton, he said:

". . . I pledge to you that new leadership will end the war and win the peace in the Pacific — and that is what America wants."

Since at least November of 1967, Mr. Nixon had been saying that only a new administration could negotiate a settlement that would end the war. The Hampton utterance was his first flat promise to do so.

His Democratic critics, and a whole body of newsmen, immediately demanded details. They reasoned that a hard pledge implied a specific plan to fulfill it.

But Mr. Nixon never, never said he had such a plan, secret or otherwise. In truth he went out of his way, again and again, to say he did not.

Richard J. Whalen, a former Nixon advisor-writer who has written a critical Nixon book called "Catch the Falling Flag," says of the demand for details on the New Hampshire promise:

"There weren't any. Nothing lay behind the pledge' except Nixon's instinct for an extra effort of salsmanship when the customers started drifting away."

What Whalen seems to be talking about is this: At that stage in New Hampshire, it was apparent Democratic challenger Eugene McCarthy was making headway with antiwar assaults on President Johnson. Furthermore, GOP Gov. George Romney's withdrawal had deprived Mr. Nixon of a valid primary opponent. To sustain interest in this candidacy, Mr. Nixon sought to make LBJ and his war policies his target.

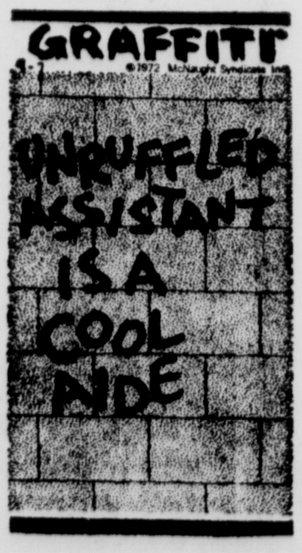

Author Jules Witcover, in his book, "The Resurrection of Richard Nixon," brands the end-the-war pledge a blunder. It evidently originated with Herbert Brownell, former Eisenhower aide. Whalen has Nixon advisor John Sears calling it "dumb advice."

Nevertheless, in trying to get out of the box, Mr. Nixon did not ever concede he had a plan. Even at Hampton he said he could promise "no push-button technique" to end the war. He said simply that the goal could be achieved if we "mobilize our economic and political and diplomatic leadership."

Next night, at a Washington fund-raising dinner, Mr. Nixon said Johnson had put too much stress on the military side. He said we should use trade leverage to get the Soviet Union to use its power in the Vietnam matter, and called this a possible "key to peace."

In a 90-minute interview with the New York Times on March 10, Mr. Nixon said he would not explain in detail how he might carry out his pledge, that no one seeking the presidency should give away bargaining positions in advance. Yet, once more, he did not indicate he had a real plan.

Indeed, he told the Times ending the war was "an objective," that he had "no magic formula." He said that "one of the advantages of a new president is that he can start fresh without being imprisoned by formulas of the past." Several times in that period he said it would be unwise not merely to say but to plan specifically what he would do the following January, in possibly altered military circumstances.

KEYNOTE SPEAKER — Rep. Gerald Ford (R) House minority leader, will be the keynote speaker at the kickoff dinner for Assemblyman Benjamin A. Gilman (L) Republican candidate for Congress in Ulster County's new Congressional District. The affair will be held Sunday, Sept. 24 at the Meadowbrook Lodge, Newburgh. Ulster GOP Chairman Albert Spada, Orange County Republican Chief William E. Doulin and Rockland County GOP Chairman Dr. Carmine Freda are honorary chairmen of the dinner.

Candidate Scores Funds Vote

ENDWELL — Republican Congressman Howard W. Robison's vote to restore funds cut from the State Department's appropriations bill requires some explanation, according to Conservative candidate Patrick O'Neil.

The reduction in U.S. funding of the United Nations, which was the object of the cuts, was a moderate and long over-due move, which our ultra-liberal congressman helped to vote down, he said.

"At present, the U.S. pays approximately 34 per cent of the budget of the central body of the U.N., excluding the nearly $500 million we contribute annually to the humanitarian efforts of sub-organizations such as UNESCO. Many congressmen and senators favored the reduction of the U.S. financial commitment to 25 per cent, as being far more reasonable an assessment of our proper share. In addition to the obvious inequities of the financial assessments of the U.N. — they reflect the financial situation of the world immediately after World War II — it is a sad fact that many nations (e.g. the U.S.S.R. and France) do not fully pay their unfairly low dues," O'Neil explained.

"The United Nations is slipping into triviality and absurdity, and the overly tolerant attitude of the U.S. is prodding it down the inglorious road to oblivion down which its predecessor, the League of Nations, went.

"The Soviet Union and Eastern Bloc countries have time and time again proven petulent and intractable in their dealings with the U.N. The U.S., on the other hand, fails to defend even its vital interests in the world body. This lopsided pressure on the U.N. has produced a succession of outrageous examples of partisanship in the U.N.'s activities:

● U.N. peace keeping forces were withdrawn on the order of Egypt in 1967, thus allowing the Six-Day War to take place.

● The U.N. has consistently condemned Israel, but has taken no notice of Arab activity.

● At the time of the admission of Red China (a nation branded as an agressor in Korea by the U.N. and cited for genocide by an International commission studying Tibet), Taiwan, a nation whose population and GNP exceed that of two-thirds of the members of the U.N., was expelled.

● Press credentials for Taiwanese newsmen were withdrawn, although their covering of the activities of the body had nothing to do with the membership or non-membership of their country in the body.

● The U.S. was censured by the U.N. for our trading with Rhodesia, but no mention was made of France, who trades openly with Rhodesia, or several of the African nations who trade behind the scenes with Rhodesia. We abstained on our own condemnation.

● The Secretary General of the U.N. recently condemned the U.S. for bombing the dikes of North Vietnam, without any evidence of the charges and without any mention of the crimes of North Vietnam.

● A year ago, the U.N. required that all complaints against countries by their citizens be mailed to the U.N. headquarters in New York City. The result of that change is that no mail comes from behind the Iron Curtain bearing complaints, for that mail is censored.

● Very recently, the Committee on Colonialism condemned the U.S. for "holding" Puerto Rico as a colony. This followed on the heels of a plebiscite in which 99 percent of the voters of Puerto Rico voted for a continuation of commonwealth status, or statehood, and less than one percent expressed a desire for independence. Castro's Cuba introduced the resolution.

"Congressman Robison may be of the opinion that the U.S. should masochistically go on subsidizing such anti-American nonsense," O'Neil said, "but I believe, for the good of both the U.S. and the U.N., it is time notice was served that a continuation of such one-sided behavior will no longer be tolerated."

Endorses New Program ...Cites Tragic Collision

MIDDLETOWN — Benjamin A. Gilman, Republican candidate for Congress in the 26th District, recently endorsed a program presented by Transportation Secretary, John A. Volpe, to prevent such accidents in the future.

But Gilman urged a shorter timetable on the program.

Volpe, at a National Conference on Railroad-Highway Grade Crossing Safety at Ohio State University, Columbus, had called for a $750 million, 10-year program for protection at 30,000 railroad-highway crossings.

"The proposal is a good one," said Gilman, "but I recommend that the program be put into effect in half that time. We should not wait an extra day to ensure the safety of our school children, more of whom are riding buses every day."

Assemblyman Gilman (R-C, 95) recalled with disappointment the veto by Gov. Rockefeller of a bill he had co-sponsored in Albany which would have provided that "school buses transporting pupils shall not cross railroad tracks except at approved railroad crossings . . ."

Gilman urged that the State Legislature take another look at the problem and called for action at the federal level.

Harness Horse Breeders Support Assemblyman

KINGSTON — The Harness Horse Breeders of New York State and the Historic Harness Horsemen of Rockland, Sullivan, Dutchess, Ulster and Putnam counties recently endorsed Assemblyman Benjamin A. Gilman as their choice for Congressman in the 26th District. Gilman is running for the post on the Republican ticket.

"Ben Gilman, as an Albany legislator, has always been responsive to horsemen's problems in the state," commented Dr. Harry M. Zweig, president of the Harness Horse Breeders of New York State. The organization represents more than 1,200 breeders, owners and drivers.

George Greb of Washingtonville, Board Chairman of the Historic Harness Horsemen and vice president of the state organization, credited Gilman with "making Orange County the number one county for breeding in New York State." The area-wide group lists more than 100 members.

Gun Ring Probe, One Surrenders

KINGSTON — A second arrest was made early Wednesday afternoon in connection with the investigation of two burglaries at a resort in South Egremont, Mass., and the alleged sale of firearms reportedly taken during the break-ins, according to County Investigator Harold T. Bowers of the Ulster County sheriff's department.

Bowers said Steve Miller, 36, of Joy's Lane, Town of Hurley, turned himself in through an attorney before arraignment at 1 p. m. before U. S. Commissioner John B. Garrity in Poughkeepsie.

Miller, according to Bowers, was cited for violating Title 18, U. S. Code, Section 922J, which accused him of selling a firearm that "had been moved in interstate commerce." He allegedly sold a shotgun to Robert Harjes of RD 4, Kingston in May for $90, authorities said.

Miller was released by Commissioner Garrity in bail of $2,500 and he is scheduled to appear on Sept. 15 in Federal Court, Foley Square, New York City. Miller pleaded innocent to the charge.

Previously arrested was Lou Christofer, 51, of 187 Miller's Lane, Town of Ulster, on a similar charge involving an alleged violation of the U. S. Code. Bowers said Christofer allegedly sold four guns to area residents. Bowers said the firearms had been identified through serial numbers as part of loot allegedly stolen during burglaries in April and May at the Jug End Resort in South Egremont.

Christofer appeared Wednesday before Commissioner Garrity. He entered a plea of innocent and was released after posting $2,500 bail. He is scheduled to appear on Sept. 15 in Federal Court in New York City, acording to Bowers.

Police Chief Charles M. Seiger Jr., of South Egremont in reports to local authorities, noted that 72 shotguns and rifles along with five cases of ammunition, 18 cases of Wester White Flyer clay pigeons and a tool box were allegedly stolen during the burglaries at the Jug End earlier this year.

According to Bowers the two men, if convicted of the charges, face possible sentences of five years in prison or a $5,000 fine, or both on each count.

Christofer is charged with four counts, and Miller was cited for one count.

According to authorities, 67 of the firearms allegedly taken during the South Egremont burglaries, have not been recovered.

The investigation locally was directed by Sheriff William B. Martin and Police Chief Julius M. Glassman. Participating in the probe that led to the arrests were Bowers, Kingston detectives Floyd Krom, Patrick Colbert and Curtis VanDemark.

It was learned today that the Kingston detective division had been working on the case since early in June, when warrants were issued for the two men who are now charged with the federal violation. The warrants were not executed because it was learned that detectives were waiting for agents of the Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms Division of the U. S. Treasury Department, to take action.

Outlines Reform Plans

A. Michael Schovel, Town of Saugerties, supervisor, outlined plans for social services reforms at Wednesday night's meeting of the We've Had It Taxpayers Association (WHITA) of Ulster County.

Schovel, who also serves as the town's social services officer, told WHITA directors that some sort of residency law must be enacted to control fraudulent collection of welfare checks in more than one place. Schovel also said that it was important that social services investigators make investigations in the homes of claimants, saying that "many welfare recipients have more than people who work for a living."

Welcome Wagon Lists Meeting for Tuesday

The first regular meeting of the Greater Kingston Welcome Club for the season is scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 12 at 8 p.m. at the Bonanza Branch of the Heritage Savings Bank, Town of Ulster, Route 9-W.

The documentary film, "A Moving World," will be shown. The film traces the evolution of Welcome Wagon from the defeating critical days of "Depression" to the scientifically triumphant one of the "Space Age". Through it all, Welcome Wagon has remained steadfas' in its purpose of service to the community and true to its destiny to be a meaningful feature in a "A Moving World". This film reflects Welcome Wagon's theme of service. Under the leadership and devotion of the company president, Mrs. Rosanne Beringer, one of the first Welcome Wagon hostesses, this service now encompasses the entire United States, every province of Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia and Puerto Rico. In 1928, the first Welcome Wagon basket was carried into the first home. Welcome Wagon now has in its employ 6,500 hostesses servicing and helping 1,000 families annually.

As the company has extended its services to include different parts of the world, the basket, which is now its symbol, has rightfully become known as "The Most Famous Basket in the World".

Anyone knowing of newcomers to Ulster County is asked to contact Welcome Wagon hostesses, Mrs. Eleanor Selzo or Mrs. Gail Widholm of Kingston or Mrs. Carol Saatman of Saugerties. Newcomers in the area who have been visited by the Welcome Wagon hostess are especially invited.

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH J. BRUNO, Seyler's Terrace, Glasco, were honored at a gala silver anniversary party recently at the Flamingo Restaurant, Saugerties. The party was hosted by the couple's children and son-in-law, Mrs. and Mrs. John (Jo-Ann) Arnold of Stephens Drive in Saugerties and James at home. Mr. and Mrs. Bruno are both natives of the Glasco area. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Perpetua of Stephens Drive, Saugerties. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. James Bruno of Glasco. He is employed at IBM, Kingston. Mr. and Mrs. Bruno were married Aug. 10, 1947 at St. Joseph's Church in Glasco. Among the 130 relatives and friends who attended were Mrs. Bruno's parents and his sister, Theresa and family, Mr. and Mrs. DiCasoli and two children of Croft Road, Poughkeepsie. (Glenndale Studio)

Maryland Couple Earn Degrees

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Baltz have received degrees from University of Maryland. Mrs. Baltz is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Algair of South River, N.J. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baltz, RD 1, Kingston.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post:

Is it correct for relatives of a beraved family to attend the funeral and call at the funeral home without a specific invitation?

Mrs. Sims

Dear Mrs. Sims:

Yes. Relatives are usually notified of the death and told about the time and place of the funeral as soon as possible. If someone is overlooked, however, or has not been reached, he should contact the family as soon as he hears the news. If he fails to make contact, he should, regardless, go to the funeral, and visit the home or funeral home.

Dear Mrs. Post:

Do you think it is ostentatious for an airline pilot to use his job title socially, as a return address or signature to friends and relatives, or at all, such as "Captain and Mrs. John Doe?"

Alice

Dear Alice:

For purely social correspondence and in social situations, most airline captains so not refer to themselves by their title. They, and also those addressing them socially, use "Mr." On any correspondence related to their profession, however, they would be addressed as "Captain.' 'And, of course, if they are in uniform they are intorduced and referred to as "Captain."

A Touch of Ireland

Fall brings back the Irish walking hat for both men and women. These hats come in autumn brights like, glen plaids, houndstooth checks or solid colors to go nicely with skirts and toppers.

AWARD WINNING STUDENTS — Noel Carpino, at right, student of the Betty Bunce Studios in Kingston, took first place in acrobatics at the recent Dutchess County Fair. She also copped third place in the Novelty portion of the competition. Pictured with her is little Linda Maria Garrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Garrison of West Hurley, who was a finalist in the competition. She appeared with the Betty Bunce Studio Whirle Winds, a group of four acrobatic dancers ages seven through nine. The girls also include Laurie Beesmer, Marie Klamentis and Tracy Martino. Miss Garrison won the judges award last year in Rhinebeck. The competition was part of the Fair's Rhinebeck Talent Search. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Burglar Alarm

By United Press International

A miniature, low-cost battery-operated burglar alarm lets out a piercing signal, sure to alert the occupants of a house and make a would-be intruder think twice about breaking in. The Bloc-Alarm is shaped like a door wedge and used in much the same way. Placed at the foot of the door, its wedge shape physically prevents easy access and the slightest pressure from an opening door causes it to emit its high-pitched warning. The alarm continues even after pressure is removed until turned off manually. Ideal also for travelers.

Reader Gives His Rules for A Better America

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Here are a few simple rules, which, if followed, could save our nation:

1. The man should be the head of the family. His wife should stay home and look after the children.
2. A married man should get preference for a job over a single man.
3. Married women should give up their jobs to married men.
4. A child should never come home from school to an empty house.
5. There should be radio and televison blackouts every day from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. so families could talk to each other and bridge the generation gap. Very truly yours,

FOR A STRONGER AMERICA

DEAR FOR: Re Number 1: How about families in which there is no man? Or if the wife's energies and talents extend beyond child tending? Or where there are no children at all?

2. Why should a man be penalized because he has chosen to remain single? Job opportunities should be based on ability, not marital status.

3. Why? Some married women must carry the same financial load as married men.

4. Working mothers can't always manage to be home before their children.

5. What ever happened to freedom of choice?

* * *

DEAR ABBY: What would you think of a husband who after being married over a year still locks all his belongs up in cedar closets? There is nobody else in the house but me.

Also, he gets all his mail at his sister's house.

What does he have to hide?

BEWILDERED IN CONN.

DEAR BEWILDERED: I would be more concerned about what he imagines he has to hide, than what he actually has. He's behaving like a sick man. Urge him to see a doctor.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is going to sound like a nightmare! I just found a library book that is 3½ years overdue. I figured it out, and it will cost me $60.50 if I return it in and pay the overdue penalty. The book itself costs only $6. Abby, I just don't know what to do. Should I just say I lost it and will be glad to replace it with a new one? Paying that ridiculous overdue penalty doesn't make any sense to me.

Can you help me?

GUILTY

DEAR GUILTY: Take the book back to the library, and throw yourself on the librarian's mercy and ask if she will settle for the price of a new book.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Some kook signed "Taxpayer" was all worked up because she wanted to call her postmaster and ask him why he "ate" her pension check, and she found out he had an unlisted telephone number. Then she asked you why "public servants" like postmasters needed unlisted telephone numbers. Boy, that beats everything.

My husband is at his job at the post office all day, yet some stupid woman called him at home in the middle of his evening meal to ask him how much it costs to send a postcard air mail now!

POSTMASTER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: With postal rates changing as frequently as they have been, it's not such a stupid question. Had she called the post office, any empoye could have told her.

CHICKEN POX — THE SEVEN YEAR ITCH

Dear Aunt Heloise:

I am a 7-year-old girl home with the chicken pox.

I like school very much and want to get back as soon as possible.

Mother said, "Don't scratch." Here is what I did to keep from scratching:

I scratch my doll wherever I itch and soon I stop itching.

Hope this helps somebody else with the chicken pox.

Carol Bruns

And they tell us all grown folks need a psychologist!

Before my daughter had her last eye operation we (the two of us) pretended we operated on her dolly.

We even put a bandage over "her" eye . . .

Carol, I love you very dearly . . .

Aunt Heloise

Dear Heloise:

After several feverish attempts to mend my nylon tricot lingerie thru the years, I decided I was going to conquer it or "heave-ho" with several still-wearable items.

Several hours later, with a spool of thread and a few choice words for my machine, I got the idea of putting bias tape on any seam or hem I wished to repair.

On older articles, you can use your scraps of tape, rickrack, seam binding, etc. Just a narrow piece is necessary.

On newer articles a new matching color tape is nice. Keep in mind something washable and the tape should be next to the presser foot rather than the presser foot next to the item you are mending.

It works on either plain or zig-zag stitch which is always good on stretchable material.

If there is anyone who has known this trick for years and hasn't shared it — "may you rest in peace."

Mrs. Vi H.

Dear Heloise:

This fun tip is for people, young and old, who like to camp.

We take bottles of bubbles (the kind you buy in the dime store) to camp with us and while spending time around the campfre we blow the bubbles into the smoke and to see how long they will last.

At night we follow them with flashlights and what pretty colors they make!

Just beautiful!

XX Olympiad—Politics, Terror and Death

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

MUNICH (UPI)—Instead of speed, strength and agility—the skills characteristic of the Olympics—the 1972 Games will be remembered for politics, terror and, finally, death.

The Israelis took their dead home on a chartered plane early today and, less than two hours later, shocked Olympic athletes returned to competition. The women fencers were the first to start, then the canoeists and the track.

Exactly 24 hours after more than 2,300 athletes attended a memorial service for their slain neighbors in the Olympic Village, the 100-meter dash for decathlon entries was run.

Six finals were scheduled in track and field and the Americans have a chance to sweep two of them—the 110-meter high hurdles and the 400-meter dash. Rod Milburn of Opelousas, La., Tom Hill of Jonesboro, Ark., and Willie Davenport of Baton Rouge, La., were expected to take all three medals in the hurdles.

Wayne Collett of UCLA was favored in the 400 meters and Vince Matthews of Brooklyn, N.Y., was given the best chance of beating him. John Smith, also of UCLA, was helped by the added day of rest on his injured hamstring muscle and may take at least third.

The schedule of the Olympics was pushed back a day after the 24-hour period of mourning from 5 p.m. Tuesday until 5 p.m. Wednesday.

The first two medals decided after the resumption went to a superheavyweight weightlifter from Russia and an epee fencer from Hungary.

The Russian, Vassili Alexeev, lifted a Games record of 1,411 pounds to add the title of the world's strongest man to the title of the worlds' fastest man won by Valeri Borzov, also of Russia. A West German was second and an East German third while Ken Patera of Portland, Ore., was eliminated when he failed three times in the snatch division.

Csaba Fenyvesi, a physician, won the fencing title with a Frenchman second and another Hungarian, Gyozo Kulcsar, the defending champion, third.

The only American medal change Wednesday was a reversal. The International Olympic Committee (IOC) Executive Board asked for the return of a gold medal from Rick DeMont of San Raphael, Calif., winner of the 400-meter freestyle.

DeMont, only 16, has an asthmatic condition and a drug he took to relieve wheezing attacks was on the list of stimulants banned by the IOC Doping Commission. The IOC also revoked a bronze medal won by the Netherlands 100-kilometer cycling team because one of its members, Aad Van den Hoek, failed to pass a Doping Commission test.

The only U.S. successes on the limited program Wednesday night were by a pair of Air Force sergeants who advanced to the semifinals of the boxing tournament, both by beating Russians. Welterweight Jesse Valdez, 25, of Houston won a unanimous decision over Anatoliy Khohkov and Bantamweight Ricardo Carreras, 22, of New York City, won a split decision over Vasiliy Solomin. They are now assured of bronze medals.

The only other Americans who participated in the shortened schedule were the Greco-Roman wrestlers and all five lost. They were welterweight Gary Neist of Albert Lea, Minn., light welterweight Jay Robinson of Spring Valley, Calif., heavyweights Buck Deadrich of San Francisco and Wayne Baughm of Universal City, Tex., and super heavyweight Chris Taylor of Dowagiac, Mich.

Taylor, who was given a chance for a gold in this event, said his heart was not in his work because of the tragic events of the last two days.

Taylor was pinned by Wilfried Dietrich of West Germany. Baren Kops of The Netherlands, who also wasn't ready, was pinned by Josip Corak of Yugoslavia.

Kops, a heavyweight, didn't want to wrestle because of the closeness he felt for Mark Slavin, an Israeli wrestler who was one of the victims of the airport massacre by Arab guerillas. Slavin and Kops had been sparring partners the last two weeks and Kops had asked Dutch officials for permission to withdraw.

While Dutch officials met to discuss the possibility of taking the team home, Kops' match began. While Kops wrestled, Dutch officials announced they would stay.

Olga Speaks Her Mind

By T. E. FOREMAN

MUNICH (UPI)—If the International Olympic Committee is really interested in views on whether and in what manner the Olympic Games should be continued, they could do a lot worse than listen to Olga Connolly. A lot worse.

Whether they could do any better is a matter of conjecture, but the group which stood around listening to Mrs. Connolly discuss her views with a succession of newsmen in the Olympic Village today would probably think not.

Mrs. Connolly is, of course, the American woman discus thrower who was the 1956 gold medal winner in her event in Melbourne, Australia, as Olga Fikotova of Czechoslovakia, who married American hammer thrower Hal Connolly, also a 1956 gold medal winner, in a storybook romance that overcame Iron Curtain bureaucratic red tape and religious opposition.

She also is an outstanding spokesman for what she thinks is right and an outspoken critic of what she thinks is wrong and she was chosen to carry the United States flag in the opening ceremonies of these Games in spite of some American Olympic officials' unhappiness with her penchant for calling them as she sees them.

As to the future of the Games, she believes firmly that they should be continued.

"We can't run away," she said. "If we do we are just like those people all over the world who try to run away from problems.

"Instead we should search our hearts and try to see what we can do about these terrible problems. We should reach out our arms to each other. We are all brothers and sisters."

Mrs. Connolly is one of a group hoping to call a meeting of Olympic athletes to send a letter to the United Nations expressing concern over the racial, religious and economic oppression throughout the world which are the enemies of peace.

"We have to break this vicious circle of hate and fear we are caught up in," she said.

But, she was asked, are athletes really that interested in world peace?

"Maybe not many of them are," she said. "It's hard to be a world champion athlete and have time for anything else. But if only a few of them are, at least that's a start."

She is competing in her fifth Olympics. Has she, she was asked, really seen any growth of interest in peace in the five competitions?

"Oh yes," she said. "That's how I became interested in peace, through the Olympics. And every Games, I find a few more people who feel as I do."

But how can she feel at all hopeful about the Olympics as a forum for peace in the light of such facts as that the Russians were not represented at this morning's memorial service to the Israeli athletes?

"I know the Russians weren't there," she said. "I guess they haven't received their instructions yet from Moscow on how they should feel.

"But maybe, in the back of some of the Russians' minds, something is beginning to work.

"They are not free to speak out, but we in the United States are free to speak. That's why we should take the lead."

But doesn't the grim, serious look of the East Germans give her pause?

"That's only on the surface," she said. "They are supposed to look that way in public. But if you could see an East German girl in the sauna bath, you would see her differently."

But while she is all for the continuation of the Games for whatever they can do to foster ideas of peace and brotherhood, she would like to see them organized differently.

"I would have a whole Olympic year, and have it not just for sports. I would have it for scientists, artists, writers, and others as well as athletes.

"And have it over a whole continent, not just in one country, which couldn't afford it. But it shouldn't be just a big track meet, or a big basketball tournament, or a big judo tournament. It should be in the true spirit of brotherhood."

This is the first of the five Olympics in which she has been involved that her husband has not been a fellow competitor. He is staying home with their four children, and Mrs. Connolly shows pictures of them with the pride of parents the world over.

The children, she said, are a principal reason she is so interested in the peace movement.

"I have to think what kind of a world are they growing up in and what can I do about it."

She was asked the inevitable question, what did she think when she heard of the murder of the Israeli team members?

"I thought it was terrible that it happened," she said. "But it was not terrible just because it happened here in the Olympic Village. It would be terrible if it happened anywhere in the world."

Can an athlete compete and do his best after an emotional experience such as what happened to the Israelis? Mrs. Connolly thinks so.

"Last year I saw my mother and father die. I saw my mother go from 180 pounds to 60 pounds, with cancer, suffering like an animal. My father died three weeks before she did because he could not stand to see her suffer.

"It left a scar on my heart. But the day after the funeral I went back to work. I had the children to feed, the house to clean, the laundry to do. Life had to go on.

"What happened here will leave a scar on my heart, too. But I will go out for practice this afternoon, and to compete in two days, and probably for the few minutes that I am competing, I will enjoy it —if I'm not getting wiped out."

Is she concerned that her activities in the cause of peace might get her in more trouble with Olympic officials?

"What I am advocating," she said, "is the Golden Rule. Do unto others as you would have them to do you.

"I think I'm on safe ground."

LADY WITH HEART — Controversial Olympic gold medalist (discuss, '56 games), Mrs. Olga Fikotva Connolly of the U. S. is an outstanding spokesman for what she thinks is right; an outspoken critic of what she thinks is wrong . . . and at times . . . to the chagrin of the establishment — speaks volubly of them. The Czech-born athlete is all for continuation of the Olympic Games. However, she would have them organized differently. Flagbearer for the U. S. team in opening ceremonies at XX Olympiad, Mrs. Connolly laces track shoes prior to pre-Olympic workout in Munich, Germany. (UPI)

Delay Decision On DeMont

MUNICH (AP)—Rich DeMont, 16-year-old world record holder from San Rafael, Calif., has been stripped of his gold medal in the 400-meter freestyle swimming event, but the executive board of the International Olympic Committee agreed Thursday to take another look at the decision made on the basis of a drug violation.

The executive board discussed the matter briefly this morning and then announced it would hold a meeting Friday to listen to Clifford Buck, president of the U. S. Olympic committee.

An IOC spokesman, asked about the announcement Wednesday vacating the medal, said: "That was right."

But the spokesman then gave the details of the further meetings, indicating a U.S. appeal or protest was being considered. The spokesman however, declined to elaborate.

Meanwhile, the 16-year-old DeMont was booked on a plane leaving Munich at 12:45 a.m. 7:45 a.m. EDT for the United States.

He apparently had the medal with him.

While he refused to talk — he said on orders of Ken Tredway, the swimming team manager—teammates said:

"Sure he's got the medal. It's his."

Pole Leading In Decathlon

MUNICH (UPI) — Tadeusz Janczenko of Poland, scoring the best time in the 100-meter dash, led the field after two events of the decathlon this morning as the Olympic track and field competition resumed on a warm and sunny day.

Janczenko ran the 100 meters in 10.64 seconds and had a best long jump of 23 ft. 10 3-4 in. on his last attempt to total 1,772 points.

Another Polish athlete, Ryszard Skowronek, was second with 1,764 points and Nikolai Avilov of the Soviet Union was third with 1,761. Avilov had the best long jump among the 32 competers at 25 2 1-4.

Boot Placekicker Clark

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Placekicker Mike Clark helped power the Dallas Cowboys to their first Super Bowl appearance . . . now he's been booted off the team.

Clark, whose unerring performance in clutch situations played a major role in Dallas' surviving the playoffs and playing in the Super Bowl two seasons ago, was picked up on Cowboy waivers Wednesday by the Buffalo Bills.

His departure means Austrian Toni Fritsch, a soccer-style kicker in his second year of football, becomes the No. 1 placekicker for the National Football League champions. Fritsch is the second youngster to push aside a veteran. Dallas dealt four-year veteran punter Ron Widby to the Green Bay Packers and replaced him with rookie Marv Bateman.

Clark, a 10-year veteran, booted two field goals against Cleveland two years ago in the playoffs and provided Dallas with a 6-2 triumph. The Cowboys had defeated Detroit 5-0 in the first playoff game of that season on a Clark field goal and a safety.

In other pro football transactions Wednesday, Pat Studstill, an 11-year veteran wide receiver and punter, was acquired by the New England Patriots on waivers from the Los Angles Rams. Studstill, who averaged 41.4 yards per punt last season, will be used solely as a punter by New England. He spent seven seasons with Detroit and the last four with the Rams.

Mike Mercer, a 10-year pro veteran who came out of retirement as a real estate agent to attempt a comeback with the Oakland Raiders, has one more exhibition game left to prove his ability. He averaged 36.5 yards on six punts against San Francisco last Sunday. Mercer didn't play last season but played on six teams from 1961-1970.

Meanwhile, the New Orleans Saints placed nine players on waivers, including 1971 No. 2 draft pick Sam Holden of Grambling, and the Atlanta Falcons traded running back Jim "Cannonball" Butler to the Philidelphia Eagles for running back Tony Baker. The Pittsburgh Steelers dealt defensive tackle Lloyd Voss to the Denver Broncos for an undisclosed 1973 draft selection.

Pick Nebraska and Arkansas

By United Press International

The college football season opens Saturday, and already we have a game between nationally-ranked powers.

In all, six teams from the top 10 will see action this Saturday, even though most of the nation's teams don't open their season until the following weekend.

The big game this Saturday night pits Arkansas, ranked No. 5 in the pre-season ratings, against eighth-ranked Southern California at Little Rock, Ark., and our expert prognosticator from the Southwest likes the Razorbacks to win this one by at least two touchdowns. The reason? Arkansas' style of play is more consistent.

Top-ranked Nebraska, the defending national champion, also opens its campaign Saturday night and the Cornhuskers are a three-touchdown choice over UCLA at Los Angeles, according to our Far West predictor.

In other games involving the top 10 teams, we like second ranked Colorado by three touchdowns over California, seventh-ranked Alabama by three touchdowns over Duke and ninth-ranked Washington by at least five touchdowns over Pacific.

Tigers, Red Sox Make a Move

By United Press International

Put these names down on your "don't invite them to the same party" list:

1 Reggie Smith and any sportswriter; 2) Billy Martin and Earl Weaver; 3) Mickey Lolich and Earl Weaver.

They were principal figures in the two key American League East games as Detroit edged Baltimore 4-3 and Boston beat New York, 2-0.

Boston remained a halfgame behind Detroit but New York dropped to third 1½ games back while fourth place Baltimore slipped two games behind.

Smith hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning to give Boston its victory margin but the Red Sox' outfielder didn't talk about his big hit with reporters after the game because he's not speaking to reporters.

Ever since the mid-season incident when Carlton Fisk was quoted as saying Smith and Carl Yastrzemski weren't hustling, Smith has clammed up. Unlike Duane Thomas, though, Smith does talk to his teammates. In fact, the incident hasn't bothered team morale (Fisk claims he was misquoted, naturally) and the Red Sox are playing at a good pace with 12 wins in their last 15 games.

John Curtis, who went 7 2/3 innings to get the victory for Boston, said, "this team is really together now. You've got 25 guys who know what they want and it's really great."

Lolich pitched only 5 2/3 innings but he still gained his 20th victory as Detroit topped Baltimore. He enjoyed the win because he's still annoyed at Oriole Manager Earl Weaver for not starting him in the All-Star game.

"Weaver was out for the glory of his own club," Lolich said, "I deserved that start. I had nothing against Weaver before that."

Weaver, who had his contract extended for a year before the game, and Martin have been getting on each other's nerves for a long time. Weaver even made a joke about it after the game when he sent Martin a picture showing the Baltimore manager putting his arm around a player.

A picture of Martin was pasted over the other player's face and Weaver signed it: "Best Wishes." Martin chuckled, "that's great. I think I'll put it in my den at home." But then he added, "I don't mind the guy but he's not the kind of guy I'd socialize with." But Martin didn't want to go into his past differences with Weaver. "That's history," he said.

In the other games, Oakland took a four-game lead over Chicago in the Western Division with a 9-1 victory over the White Sox, California edged Kansas City 3-1, Minnesota blanked Texas 2-0 and Cleveland beat Milwaukee 4-3 but lost the second game 5-2.

Rico Petrocelli's defensive gem at third base saved Boston's victory. He made a diving stop of Roy White's sixth inning shot down the line and got up in time to throw to second for a force.

Manager Eddie Kasko said, "you won't see a better play anywhere at any time. He rolled over and still made the play. That was the ball game."

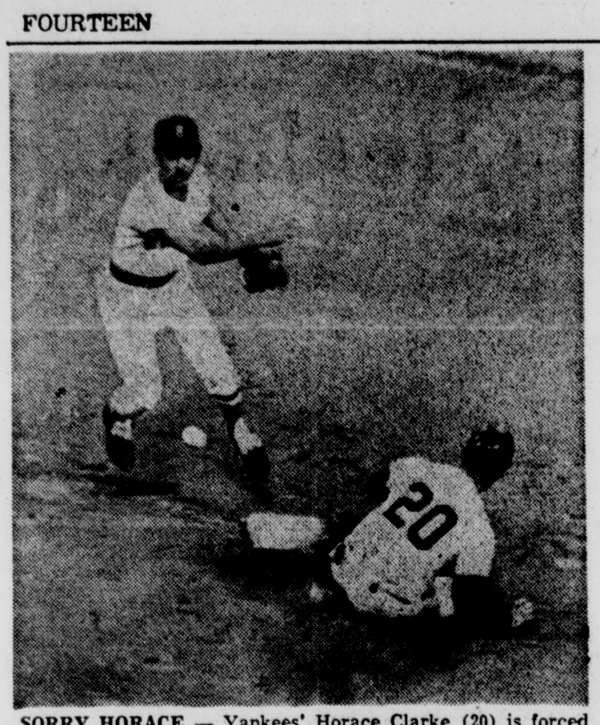

Gates Brown singled in one run and scored another and Chuck Seelbach pitched 3 1/3 innings of scoreless relief to save Lolich's win as Detroit maintained its lead. Detroit got three runs in the first off loser Jim Palmer.

Oakland exploded for six runs in the third inning to down Chicago. Joe Rudi's two-run homer highlighted the uprising. Ken Holtzman pitched a seven-hitter to get the win and Tom Bradley took the loss.

Dick Woodson pitched a two-hitter to hand Minnesota the victory over Texas. Phil Roof drove in one run and scored another to pin the loss on Bill Gogolewski.

Rudy May pitched a six-hitter to give California the victory over Kansas City. Leo Cardenas' run-scoring single snapped a 1-1 deadlock and started a two-run fourth inning rally for the Angels.

John Briggs hit his first homer since Aug. 3 and George Scott hit his 15th homer to give Milwaukee the second game victory over Cleveland. In the opener. Buddy Bell hit a two-run homer in the eighth to give the Indians the win.

SORRY HORACE — Yankees' Horace Clarke (20) is forced at second base by Bosox shortstop Luis Aparicio who throws to first in unsuccessful double play bid during Wednesday's game. The ball was hit by Thurman Munson, who beat the relay back to first. Boston won, 2-0. (UPI)

Smith-Ashe Match Is USLTA Key

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The match that may decide the top player in the 1972 USLTA All-American rankings takes place today during the men's quarter finals of the U. S. Open Tennis Championships.

Top-seeded Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., meets sixth-seeded Arthur Ashe of Miami and, although Smith is the betting favorite, Ashe's credentials in the tournament are more impressive.

Smith is the defending champion and No. 1 on the special All-American rankings for both contract and independent pros. Ashe is No. 2 and the tournament's 1968 winner.

Both players are noted for their strong serves, but while Ashe has lost only one set in his three previous rounds this year, Smith has dropped at least one to each opponent.

Billy Jean King, the top-seeded defending women's champ, said either Ashe or Smith will take this year's crown. "With the kind of bad bounces we're getting on these courts, the only person who can win is a man with a big serve," Mrs. King said.

She beat the poor playing service in the West Side Tennis Club Stadium Wednesday and advanced to the women's quarter-finals with 6-2, 7-5 victory over eighth-seeded Virginia Wade of England. But it was the match between third-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Russia's Olga Morozova that brought the crowd to its feet.

Miss Evert beat Mrs. Morozova, the 1972 Eastern Grass Courts women's titleholder, 3-6, 6-3, 7-6. Following the match Miss Evert said she never thought she'd be the winner.

"I never thought I could win. Olga was serving well. The only time I got confident was when it was 3-1 in the tie-breaker," Miss Evert said. She won the tie breaker 5-1 with the last point coming on a lob by Mrs. Morozova that just dropped out.

In another match, Pam Teeguarden lost to ninth-seeded Kerry Melville of Australia. Miss Melville beat Miss Teeguarden, the 20-year-old upset winner over Evonne Goolagong, 6-0, 6-2.

Margaret Court, a women's winner here five times, was unimpressive in advancing with a 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 victory over fourth-seeded Rosemary Casals of San Francisco. Mrs. Court relying more on placement than power, found the spry Miss Casals almost too much to handle when many of her shots were blasted back.

Ellis Wonders 'Why the Fuss?'

By United Press International

Dock Ellis claims he is no different from any of the other starters on the Pittsburgh staff and can't understand what all the fuss is about.

Ellis spun a seven-hitter and Roberto Clemente's triple keyed a three-run first inning as the Pirates whipped the Chicago Cubs 4-0 Wednesday night for their ninth straight victory to reduce their "magic number" in the National League East to 12 games.

The victory increased the Pirates lead to 13½ games over the second-place Cubs.

Ellis struck out six and walked none en route to his 13th victory in 20 decisions while Dan McGinn, starting his first game of the season in place of Milt Pappas, who was called home due to a family illness, lost his fourth straight.

When asked if he is the ace of the staff, Ellis replied, "The guy with the most wins is considered the ace but like I said before, we have five aces on this club."

"Who cares what they print or who they call the ace. Basically all five of us pitch the same. We all have a slider, a fastball that moves, a sinker and a good changeup," Eilis added.

The defending world champions jumped on McGinn in the first inning when Gene Clines and Al Oliver singled and scored on Clemente's triple. Richie Hebner's two-out single then scored Clemente. Singles by Hebner and Gene Alley and an infield grounder by Clines produced the Pirates' other run in the fourth inning.

In other National League games Montreal downed New York 7-3, Philadelphia edged St. Louis 3-2, San Francisco blanked San Diego 6-0 and Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles 6-3.

Ken Reynolds, who lost his first 12 decisions this season, picked up his second straight victory as the Phillies downed St. Louis. Reynolds was given a two-run edge in the second inning when Don Money singled home two runs after a walk to Joe Lis and a double by Greg Luzinski.

Former Mets Ken Singleton and Tim Foli hit run-scoring doubles in the third inning to lead Montreal over New York. Singleton and Foli doubled after a single by starting pitcher Mike Torrez, who picked up his 15th victory, to give the Expos a 3-0 advantage.

Jim Hart and Garry Maddox homered runs and Ron Bryant scattered six hits as San Francisco scored all its runs in the first two innings and went on to trim the Padres. Hart's homer, his third of the season, followed single by Maddox and a walk.

Back-to-back doubles in the third inning by Hal McRae and Dave Concepcion scored the decisive run for the Cincinnati as the Reds went on to defeat the fading Dodgers.

Soviet Goalie's a Prize

WINNIPEG AP — If Russia's Valary Kharlamov is worth a million dollars on the basis of his play in the current hockey series against Team Canada, then young Soviet goalie Vladislav Tretiak must be worth half as much again.

The 20-year-old Tretiak mesmerized the Canadians through two periods Wednesday night as the teams played to a 4-4 tie in the third game of the international clash.

Tretiak's brilliant glove save third period Wednesday night played a key role in producing a tie.

President Harold Ballard of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League put the million dollar price tag on Kharlamov. But Tretiak has been the outstanding player in the three games so far and he could be the deciding factor in the eight-game series that resumes in Vancouver Friday night.

off Paul Henderson early in the Wednesday night he turned back 38 shots, 32 of them in the first two period. The fast-skating Russians finally took away the play from the National Hockey league stars and held an 8-6 advantage in shots in the final 20 minutes.

The Russian youth program was also instrumental in boosting the team from a 4-2 deficit late in the second period on goals by Uri Lebedev and Alexander Bodunov.

Erratic defensive play by Canada led to the other two Russian goals, by Vladimir Petrov and Kharlamov, while the Soviets were short-handed.

JMP. Parise, Jean Ratelle, Phil Esopsito and Paul Henderson were the Canadian marksmen.

New Paltz High Looking for That Quarterback

(Second in a series)
By IRA FUSFELD

NEW PALTZ

The glamour spot in football is quarterback and the glamour boy in the Ulster County Athletic League the last couple of years has been Jay Ackert of New Paltz High School.

But Ackert has gone the route all high school stars finally find . . . . graduation, and suddenly the Hugies are glamourless. Or are they?

"Ackert will certainly be a tough man to replace," admitted New Paltz coach John Ford, "but we'll find someone to do the job."

That someone will emerge from a trio of hopefuls which includes senior Jay Honold, junior Joe Owens, and sophomore Pete Schiascia.

"It's still up for grabs," claimed Ford as he prepared his forces for their Sept. 16 opener at Marlboro. The choice may finally come down to just how much of an aerial game Ford is planning. He's quick to point out that Honold has the experience to move the ball club, but that perhaps Owens and Schiascia are better passers.

That determination might be made easier by the abundance of speedy running backs Ford has on his roster. Although he's missing solid performers like Joey Williams, George Clark, and Charlie Johnson, all now graduated, he does have a pair of good looking veterans in P.J. Savago and Ed Siani. Others who should get the feel of the pigskin are Dave Haight, Mike Yaeple, Greg Garcia, Rick Snyder, Roger Plantier, and Peter Ferante.

New Paltz also lost several key linemen including all-county tackle Tom Wilson, guard Duane Decker, tackle Mike Fairweather, and end Mike Snyder. But the Hugies appear to have enough bodies to fill those spots.

Center Phil Bodana is back as is guard Al Bonagura, former guard, now tackle Lee Hamilton, and tackle Bill Goehren.

Backing up Bodana will be Mickey Cohen, Joe Newkirk, and Tom Leccione.

Charlie Gardner and George Ehrbar are after starting guard spots as are John Toscani, Phi Bevier, and Doug Dillon.

Larry Crans, Liccione, Newkirk, Jack Provenano, and Dave Hamilton are trying to unseat Bonagura, Goehrens, and Lee Hamilton at tackle.

The end positions are the goal of Jay Egan, Brian Huth, Terry Donavan, and Ferante.

Looking for jobs at linebacker are Bob Wilms and Greg Van Kleeck.

Ford is carrying eight seniors, 12 juniors, and 11 sophomores on a club which finished up last season with a 4-5 mark.

The New Paltz coach expects another exciting race in the UCAL: "The league is balanced this season. Highland may not be as good as they were now that the Monroe brothers are gone, but Highland is still a good football school. Liberty will be tough, Marlboro will be tough, but . . . hey, there's no reason why New Paltz can't be a tough football club.

"We have strength in numbers. We have a young, aggressive group that likes to hit, and although we may make a few mistakes out there, we'll be tough."

The glamour may be gone, but the power seems to be very much in evidence at New Paltz High.

The schedule:

Beekman Arms Capture Twinbill in Slow Pitch

Two nights of Double A makeup action in the City Slow Pitch League saw the division leading Beekman Arms rack up a pair of wins, Capri 400 notch one victory, the Beekman Armoury and Garden of Eden win one and lose two, and Boiceville drop its only start.

In other games, Dedericks nipped the Freeman, 13-12, Alpine slugged Hurley Store 25-16 and Holsapples dropped a 15-7 decision to Rolling Acres.

The Arms scored five times in the bottom of the sixth to sink Boiceville 7-2 as Jim Layton homered. The leaders made it two straight coming back to whip the Armoury as Tom Tortorella clouted a grand slam to pace a 16-6 victory. Buster Narum and Carl Hulle also homered, and John Lobotsky picked up both wins.

Capri downed the Garden of Eden 17-2 in five innings with a 21-hit, six home run attack. Taking on the Armoury, the G of E sluggers were slightly more successful, splitting a twin bill 5-10 and 5-1. The Rhinebeck squad took the first game behind homers by Tony Johnson and Joe Labonte while in the second contest Don Byrd hit his second home run of the night to even the score.

Joe Darwak hit a three-run homer in Dietz Stadium in the bottom of the seventh to pull Dedericks out of the fire. Trailing throughout the game, Darwak's shot and two homers by Tony Hickey overcame circuits by Steve Kante and George Zeeh.

The nitecap at Dietz saw Bob Dunn hit for the circuit to lead the Alpine victory. Ten runs in the first started the winners' parade as Dunn totalled eight RBI's. Pete Showers homered for the Storekeepers.

Rolling Acres rapped out 22 hits including triples by Rick Leveque and Don Patton to dump Holsapples. Leading 6-2 after four, the winners broke away with five in the fifth.

Senior Pairings Set

WOODSTOCK

Ninety players, including defending Class A champion Philip Coletti, will tee off in the 19th Annual Ulster County Seniors Golf Championships Sunday at Woodstock Country Club.

There was no tournament in 1971 because of two successive rainouts, the first ever in the history of the event.

Coletti captured the A title (70 years and over) with a 13-hole score of 56 in 1970. Harry Hohnorst, an 8-time winner is also in the Class A field, along with Ted Young, James A. Dwyer, 1966 champion; Wellington (Duke) Hunter, Fabian L. Russell, Charles R. Arnold and association president A.J. (Tony) DeLisio of Woodstock.

Class A players will play 13 holes made up of the first nine, then 1-2-6-9 on the second swing. All other flights are contested at 18 holes.

The field is divided into morning and afternoon rounds of 45 players each. Trophies for low gross and low net will be awarded in each of the five age divisions at the dinner following the tournament. The Harold F. King Memorial Award for distinguished service to golf also will be presented at that time.

New Paltz Has Registration; Student Body 'Largest Ever'

By WADE BURKHART

The State University College at New Paltz held its first day of registration Wednesday, as the college prepared to begin classes next week with a new college president and the largest student body in its history.

The new president is Dr. Stanley K. Coffman Jr., he succeeds Dr. John J. Neumaier, who resigned the presidency to return to teaching.

Dr. Coffman comes to New Paltz from a position as provost of Bowling Green State University of Ohio.

Dr. Coffman, 55, had been a member of the faculty at Bowling Green since 1962, serving successfully as professor and chairman of the department of Engish, graduate dean and vice president of academic affairs, and dean of faculties.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa, he earned his B.A. degree in Haverford College, and his Master's and Ph.D. degrees at Ohio State University.

Estimated enrollment figures for New Paltz indicate the student body will grow from about 8,000 students during the 1971-72 academic year, to about 8,500 students this year.

According to college authorities, the bulk of the increase will be felt in the junior and senior classes.

The freshman class is expected to remain relatively stable at about 1,100 students, up only slightly from last year.

However, about 750 transfer students are expected. The majority of these will enroll in the junior and senior classes.

College authorities say the large number of transfer students is in line with a state university master plan, which encourages state colleges to make more room for transfers from local community colleges.

The majority of the transfer students will come from Ulster, Dutchess, and Orange Community Colleges, the college says.

Wednesday's registration was for graduate students. Undergratuate registration will be held Thursday and Friday.

New entrant registration, for the freshmen and transfer students, will be held Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 11 and 12.

The first day of graduate classes will be Monday. Undergraduate classes begin Wednesday.

The college expects to have about 5,000 full-time undergraduates, and about 500 part-time undergraduates. About 270 Master's and advanced study full-time students are expected to enroll, and about 2,400 part-time graduate students.

Other students, such as those in the Continuing Education program, will make up the rest of the student body.

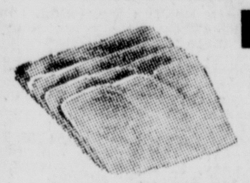

Of the undergraduate students, about 60 per cent are expected to be juniors and seniors, and only about 40 per cent freshmen and sophomores.

'Radical' Educator to Present Lecture at College

NEW PALTZ — Radical educator Jonathan Kozol will lecture at the State University College at New Paltz Tuesday, Sept. 19, at 8 p.m.

Kozol will be one of a number of distinguished lecturers, including biogeneticist Lee Ehrman, women's rights advocate Kate Millett, and religious philosopher Huston Smith, who will participate in a new freshman orientation lecture series this fall at New Paltz.

The series will be open to the public, but its purpose, according to college vice president Jordan Churchill, will be to stimulate freshmen to take a good look at the opportunities available to them and the substantive issues confronting them as they begin their college careers.

The series is divided into five subject areas: Issues in Education; the Organization of Society; the Evolution of Culture; the Meaning of Freedom; and Understanding Life-Systems. Each topic will be the subject of three lectures.

Kozol, one of the founders of the Free School movement and author of Death at an Early Age and Free Schools, will speak on the subject of "Toward a New Philosophy of Education."

His experience teaching black children in the city of Boston led him to write Death at an Early Age, subtitled "The Destruction of the Hearts and Minds of Negro Children in the Boston Public Schools."

Published by Houghton Mifflin in 1967, it won the National Book Award for 1968 in the Science, Relgion and History category.

Feminists to Present Program Tonight

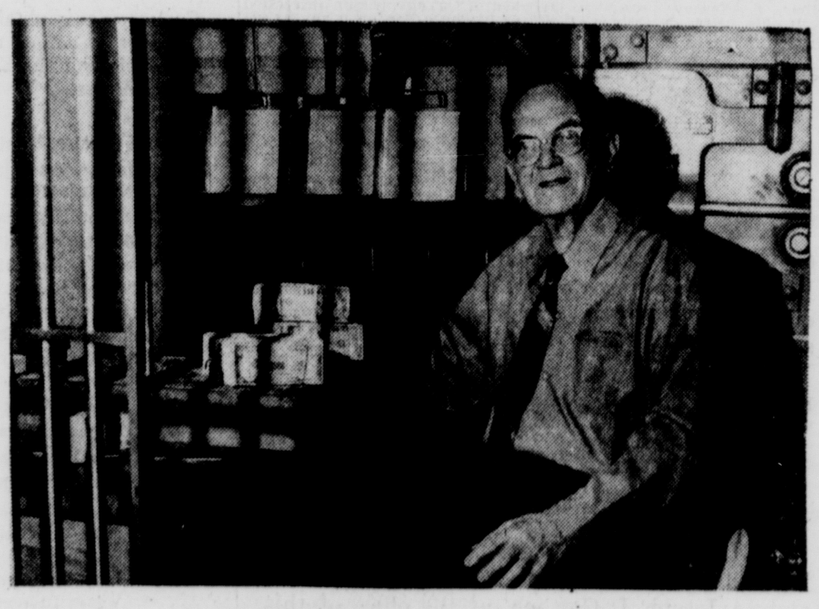

NEW PALTZ — Two well-known feminists, Catharine Stimpson and Lila Karp, will speak at Lecture Center 100 at the State University College at New Paltz tonight at 8 p.m.

Ms. Stimpson, currently an assistant professor of English at Barnard College has long been active in women's education. She is presently acting director of the Barnard Women's Center and Chairperson of its executive committee.

This past summer she was named a special consultant on Women's Studies at Affirmative Action Institutes sponsored by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Gainesville, Fla., and Nashville, Tenn.

Ms Karp, a feminist teacher, journalist and lecturer, has appeared in radio and television interviews and at over 30 universities and organizations throughout the United States, England, and Canada. She is the author of the novel, The Queen is in the Garbage.

Man Surrenders After Holding Three Hostages

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. (UPI) — A Poughkeepsie man, who reportedly held three persons hostage and kept police at bay with a shotgun for several hours, surrendered peacefully today without firing a shot.

Robert I. DuBois, 29, was taken into custody by a joint force of city and town of Poughkeepsie police at mid-morning. Police said he had been in the third-floor apartment with a woman and her two children since Wednesday evening.

Police had gone to the address, on Orchard Place, to arrest DuBois, who reportedly failed to appear in court to answer an assault charge. He had been released from jail when a judge reduced his bail from $25,000 to 5,000.

DuBois reportedly let a 13-

Auditorium for Rally . . . No Decision Yet

KINGSTON — City officials have still not made a decision on whether to rent the Municipal Auditorium for a peace rally featuring Jane Fonda and Tom Hayden on Sept. 18.

The request from an organization called Group For Reconciliation of Peoples Everywhere (GROPE) was delivered to the city clerk's office on Tuesday afternoon.

City Clerk Louis F. DeCicco said today that he has to confer with Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klien and with Alderman Emilio A. Primo Jr. (D-Eighth Ward), chairman of the Common Council's Building and Supply Committee which has authority over the use of all city buildings. DeCicco said he mentioned the request to Primo at the Tuesday night Council meeting but has not discussed it in detail with him. Klein, DeCicco said, was out of town on Wednesday. DeCicco said today that the Sept. 18 date is available at the auditorium.

In the application, GROPE stated, "We will be holding an informative rally in conjunction with the Indochina Campaign in order to clarify issues of great importance to the upcoming elections. Stressed issues will include the prospect for peace in Indochina, the POW dilemma and the quest for social justice on local and national levels."

Miss Fonda, an Academy Award winning actress, recently returned from Hanoi, North Vietnam. Hayden was allegedly the first American to visit North Vietnam (in 1966) since the war started. He is also a founder of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

Organizers plan the rally for 8 p.m. at the Municipal Auditorium on Broadway.

Engineers Promise To Correct Odor

Design engineers have promised to correct an odor causing situation connected with the village's new $1.3 million sewage treatment plant, following more than a year of complaining from area residents in the area.

About 40 persons turned out for a public meeting Wednesday night in New Paltz to hear representatives from the engineering firm of Brinnier and Larios of Kingston outline corrective mesures. Augustus Brinnier, Christus Larios and Harry Ettinger from the firm, promised immediate corrective steps, according to Village Trustee John Logan. "The odor has finally gotten through to the engineers," Logan observed.

The engineers, Logan said, were not specific; they did not say what was casuing the problem, they did not say what they would have to do to correct it and they did not indicate when it would be corrected; but Logan said, residents who attended, most from the Huguenot Street area where the plant is located, "seemed satisfied that they had finally gotten through to the engineers."

The plant went into operation last August, residents have been complaining about the odor problem ever since. According to statements from last night's meeting, the odors seem to reach a peak in the early evening hours, compounded by prevailing winds from the west.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) There are some stumbling blocks in your path of progress. Remove them and you get ahead much faster Spend time with fascinating associates Don't neglect to handle correspondence.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Pay more attention to the practical side of your existence now and use more efficient methods in the future. Listen to what a financial expert has to say, but don't take any risks.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) The morning could be frustrating but later all smooths out with conditions becoming favorable to you. Entertain those persons who understand your ideas and positions. Avoid gossips.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan how to straighten out a situation with a close tie early and you get good results later. Taking care of civic work will improve your image. Don't go slumming tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those delightful young people who has a strong desire to do for others, but finds it difficult to know what to do for self. Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

KAY? (Q.) From the picture in the paper you look real intelligent. I nope you can give me the answer I'm looking for. I'm so lonesome and blue. It's been a long time since I had a date. Kay and I went together nearly two years, but we broke up last winter.

I have a hard time meeting girls. I guess it's this complex I have about my looks. Ever since I was little, there has been somebody to remind me that I'm fat or ugly.

That is one reason I liked Kay so much. She was cute. But she was convinced toward the end that she had changed and wanted something more exciting than us.

I still guess she is the girl for me, even though I think that since she broke up she has been doing some wrong things. What should I do?—Paul, 17 and in Pain in Pennsylvania.

(A.) If you are fat, quit being. Get a good diet from your doctor and stick to it. Also get your hair styled to help your face. A good stylist can probably give you a distinctive look that will appeal to girls.

Go with Kay again, if you wish, but look upon her as just a girl, independent rather than a possession or a creation of yours. She does not belong to you, you know. She is her own self.

But don't go just with her. Go with as many girls as you can. You got into a rut with Kay. Now you are in a rut all alone. Variety will pull you out of it. Get busy.

TOO OLD? (Q.) The boy I like wants to give me a ring. But he is 10 years older than I am and my mama says that is too old. I thought if two people loved each other age didn't make any difference. What do you think?—Tina in Louisiana.

(A.) You do not say how old you are. If you were 21 and he was 31 I would say age makes little difference. I might say that if you were 19 and he was 29.

But your handwriting tells me you are quite a bit younger—perhaps 14. If you are 14 and he is 24, then I agree with your mother that he is too old for you.

Youth Beat

MUSIC TO VOTE BY — "The Midnight Special," shown recently on NBC TV, was considered an innovative approach to getting out the youth vote. With host John Denver and featured performers like the Everly Brothers, David Clayton Thomas, Mary Travers and Harry Chapin, the program was a vote special.

Frontlash, Inc., the non-partisan organization concerned with the registration of young people, helped organize the special because they felt a little music would help their cause.

Actually music has played an extremely important role in this election year. Everyone has a theme song.

Frontlash has a theme song called "Tellin' the World," which many disc jockeys across the country are playing as a public service.

"Nixon Now" is the theme accepted by the Committee for the Re-election of the President. And a song called "Come Home, America" by Johnny Rivers is one of the themes being considered on McGovern's side.

Record companies have organized promotions and given discounts to young registered voters. Groups have given concerts and provided free entrance to registered voters.

The McGovern benefits had the sounds of Peter, Paul and Mary, Simon and Garfunkel, Carole King and James Taylor. While the Nixon young were entertained at the Miami convention by Jay and the Americans, Frankie Valli, Danny and the Juniors and the Five Satins.

So it seems that it's been decided that the only way to reach young people and get them to vote is through music.

HELPING THE PEOPLE — Sergio Mendes, who left Brazil in 1965 to form Sergio Mendes and Brasil '66, is still drawing crowds as Brasil '77.

Mendes, showing his appreciation, has set up a full tuition scholarship at Berklee College of Music in Boston, Mass. The $5,000 scholarship, based on financial need and music ability, will cover the freshman year for a Brazilian student.

Black Moses, Isaac Hayes, recently announced that he and some black businessmen are sponsoring a $100 million housing project for low income families in the United States.

The proposed project will house more than 20,000 people within the next five years. And Hayes made a good start with an $8 million housing unit in St. Croix, Virgin Islands which he financed himself. This development will be used as a model for the future ones to be developed on the continent.

Specific cities have not yet been decided upon, but Hayes wants a major part of the housing development to be done in the South where he was born.

Battle to Cover Terror

NEW YORK (AP) — The terror at the Olympic Village is over. And so is a day of frantic behind-the-scenes battling by the three major American networks to cover the story with the Space Age sphere that lets them say, "Live by satellite from Munich."

The bloody attack by Palestinian terrorists on the Israeli quarters at the Olympic Village—Building 31—produced a tour de force in coverage by the American Broadcasting Co., which had been using the satellite all week for live broadcasts of the Olympic Games.

ABC's Jim McKay, broadcasting from the network's office a bare 500 yards from Building 31, was a particular model of restraint and quiet, low-key reporting under intense pressure.

The pressure wasn't the story alone. It was a network battle back in New York to share satellite time with ABC, which had reserved use of the system for its regular Olympic coverage before Tuesday's tragedy began.

By sheer luck, the Columbia Broadcasting System had reserved the satellite the day before for use between 1 p.m. and 3:40 p.m. Tuesday.

And at 12:58 p.m., McKay and his colleagues at ABC—Howard Cosell, and Peter Jennings—had to surrender use of the satellite to CBS, which made the most of its time with a comprehensive one-hour report, "Terror at the Olympics."

NBC was blanked out on initial live coverage of the Palestinian attack, which ended with 17 dead.

The most it could manage during the day was a live satellite report from the scene—it began at 2:55 p.m. and ended five minutes later—and grumblings at NBC here at the meager amount of time ABC gave it.

ABC had begun broadcasting live from the scene at 8:10 a.m. and, after the end of the CBS report, shared time on the Satellite with CBS on a pool arrangement that NBC was permitted to join at 5 p.m.

But at the onset, most of the show was an ABC exclusive, a well-done report that initially relied on the network's own ground-level camera which West German authorities commandeered for a close-up watch on Building 31 at the Olympic Village.

Jennings, ABC's Middle East correspondent, actually got inside the Olympic Village.

McKay, often criticized for his effusiveness as a sports commentator, never went overboard as an eyewitness to Tuesday's horror.

On several occasions, despite an array of fragmentary and conflicting reports in the early hours, he only broadcast what was confirmed.

He perhaps summed up the scene best at one point when describing the reaction of Olympic contestants from Arab countries. "I spoke to the athletes from North Africa, Tunis and Egypt. They all said the same thing. 'Madness, Madness'."

The poet who wrote, "Beneath the bludgeonings of chance, my head is bloody but unbowed," probably was not a bridge player.

If he was, he would have to be a pretty good one to keep those bludgeonings from really hurting him.

West cashes two spade tricks and shifts to a diamond. South has looked over dummy by this time and seen that, assuming trumps don't break 3-0, he will be able to draw trumps and try the club finesse for an overtrick.

He plays a high trump and bludgeonings start. East shows out! He has to lose a trump trick and cannot afford to lose a club also.

If he takes the club finesse he will lose that trick but he does not have to. West has the three trumps and he can use an elimination play to catch West in an end play.

South simply takes the two high trumps and his good spade. Then he plays out the rest of the high diamonds. West's best defense is to refuse to ruff, but this does him no good. South simply throws West in with his high trump and forces West to make the losing lead of a club or spade.

Communists Take Headquarters

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist forces captured the South Vietnamese headquarters in Tien Phuoc today and threatened to take complete control of the district town, a vital link in the defenses of Da Nang, field reports said.

The U.S. command said today North Vietnamese antiaircraft batteries shot down two U.S. Navy jets over North Vietnam Wednesday. The two crew members of one jet, an A6 Intruder, are missing. The pilot of the other jet, a one-man A4 Skyhawk, was plucked out of the Tonkin Gulf by a helicopter that came under fire during the rescue.

In Saigon, terrorists flung an explosive charge into a militia office, killing three civilians, wounding a militiaman and wreckng the office. It was the first such attack in Saigon in over a month.

Allied officers said the status of the government garrison and civilians still in Tien Phuoc, 36 miles south of Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, was unknown following daylong fighting there.

The A6 intruder was downed by a Soviet-built missile about three miles southwest of Haiphong, North Vietnam's major port city. Though its two crewmen are missing, the pilot of the A4 Skyhawk from the carrier Hancock was luckier.

Antiaircraft artillery fire hit his plane near Thanh Hoa at the northern end of the North Vietnamese panhandle. He bailed out over the Gulf of Tonkin. A rescue helicopter picked him up unhurt from the water despite fire from shore. Five other Hancock jets roared into the area and flew cover for the rescue.

Laird Transcript ...Now Revealed

★ ★ ★

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird told Congress a month before the U.S. mining of North Vietnamese harbors that the time had come to halt arms shipments form the Soviet Union and other countries to Hanoi.

"If these major powers are willing to go ahead and support the criminals and the bandits in complete disregard for international law and international understanding, there is a time wher we have to say 'no'," Laird testified. "I think that time is now."

He outlined those views in a closed-door session before the foreign operations subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee on April 11, 28 days before President Nixon announced the bombing and mining policy.

A censored transcript of Laird's testimony was released by the subcommittee today.

Laird was asked then if there were any plans to mine Haiphong narbor.

"I am not going to discuss contingency plans and the various possibilities," he replied, "but I would not rule that out."

Laird said he would not object to self-defense arms shipments for Hanoi but said the Soviet shipments were giving North Vietnam its only means of continuing the Indochina war indefinitely

"They will come down another day as long as the Soviet Union continues giving them the wherewithal to do it," he said, "because their objective is to . . . dominate Southeast Asia."

Laird also told the subcommittee that the Indochina war has cost the United States $128.2 billion since 1965. He said the annual cost rose from $103 million in 1965 to $28.8 billion in 1969 and was down last year to $9 billion.

Excluding military spending required with or without a war, Laird put the cost of the war at $101.8 billion over-all, with a high of $21.5 billion in 1969 and a total of $7 billion last year.

This year's war cost is classified but the administration has asked for an additional $2.2 billion as a result of the North Vietnam bombing and mining costs through Sept. 30.

Predict Peace Talks to Drag

PARIS (UPI)—South Vietnam predicted at the deadlocked Paris peace talks today that the war in Vietnam will drag on indefinitely unless the Communists abandon their goal of military victory and negotiate.

Both sides at the 158th session denounced the use of violence to settle political disputes. Yet the delegations in their opening remarks gave no indication they were any closer to a negotiated settlement of the continuing war.

"It appears from the military situation in South Vietnam and from the current state of negotiations that if it were only peace you want, the war could come to an end tomorrow. On the contrary, it may be prolonged indefinitely if you still pursue your dream of military victory," the Saigon deputy negotiator, Nguyen Xuan Phong, told the delegations at the round table in the International Conference Hall.

The U.S. chief negotiator, William J. Porter, flatly told the Communist delegations, "Your military effort has failed."

"You have not succeeded in your invasion of the South," Porter said. "You have incurred terrible losses but you have not broken South Vietnam's will or capacity to resist you . . . Second, your political effort has failed. Nearly a million South Vietnamese (civilians) fled your invading forces, which is a clear enough response to the Viet Cong call for an antigovernment uprising."

Belfast Home Bombed, Politician's Relative Dies

BELFAST (UPI) — Gunmen bombed the Belfast home of a Roman Catholic politician today, killing a woman relative. British troops clashed with Protestant mobs in what an army spokesman said was "the worst Protestant rioting in three years."

Residents in other Belfast areas found the bullet-riddled bodies of two men, both apparently the victims of assassination. One was dumped from a car in the Catholic Falls area, the other found in the Protestant Woodstock area.

The latest deaths raised the fatality toll in three years of Northern Ireland violence to 552.

The bombers struck at the home of James O'Kane, chairman of the Republican Labor party and recently released from internment as a suspected member of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA).

They hurled a duffel bag full of explosives through a window. The blast killed Mrs. Bridget Breen, a relative of the O'Kanes, and wounded Mrs. O'Kane and a visiting neighbor, Mrs. Vera Hasson.

The four O'Kane children, sleeping upstairs, escaped injury.

O'Kane, who was away running his pub, the Starry Plough, at the time, accused the Protestant paramilitary Ulster Defense Association (UDA) of the bombing.

"I blame this entirely on the UDA—no one else," he said. "They were responsible for this cowardly and callous attack."

The keen hearing of a British officer today foiled a plot to blow up an army post in the Catholic Springfield Road, the army said. The officer heard strange noises. A search uncovered a freshly dug tunnel leading from a nearby house to within 10 feet of the army post.

"Another few hours digging and they would have been able to stuff the tunnel with jelly (gelignite explosive) and blow the place up," an army spokesman said.

The trouble on Protestant Shankhill Road began shortly before 9 p.m. Wednesday night when a crowd hijacked a bus and tried to set fire to it outside the nearby Tennant Street police station, an army spokesman said.
